Tom-Tom a winning tribune

Editors create paper for students, community

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Lake Villa, Antioch, and Lindenhurst are among the rare communities in the United States which have more than one local community newspaper.

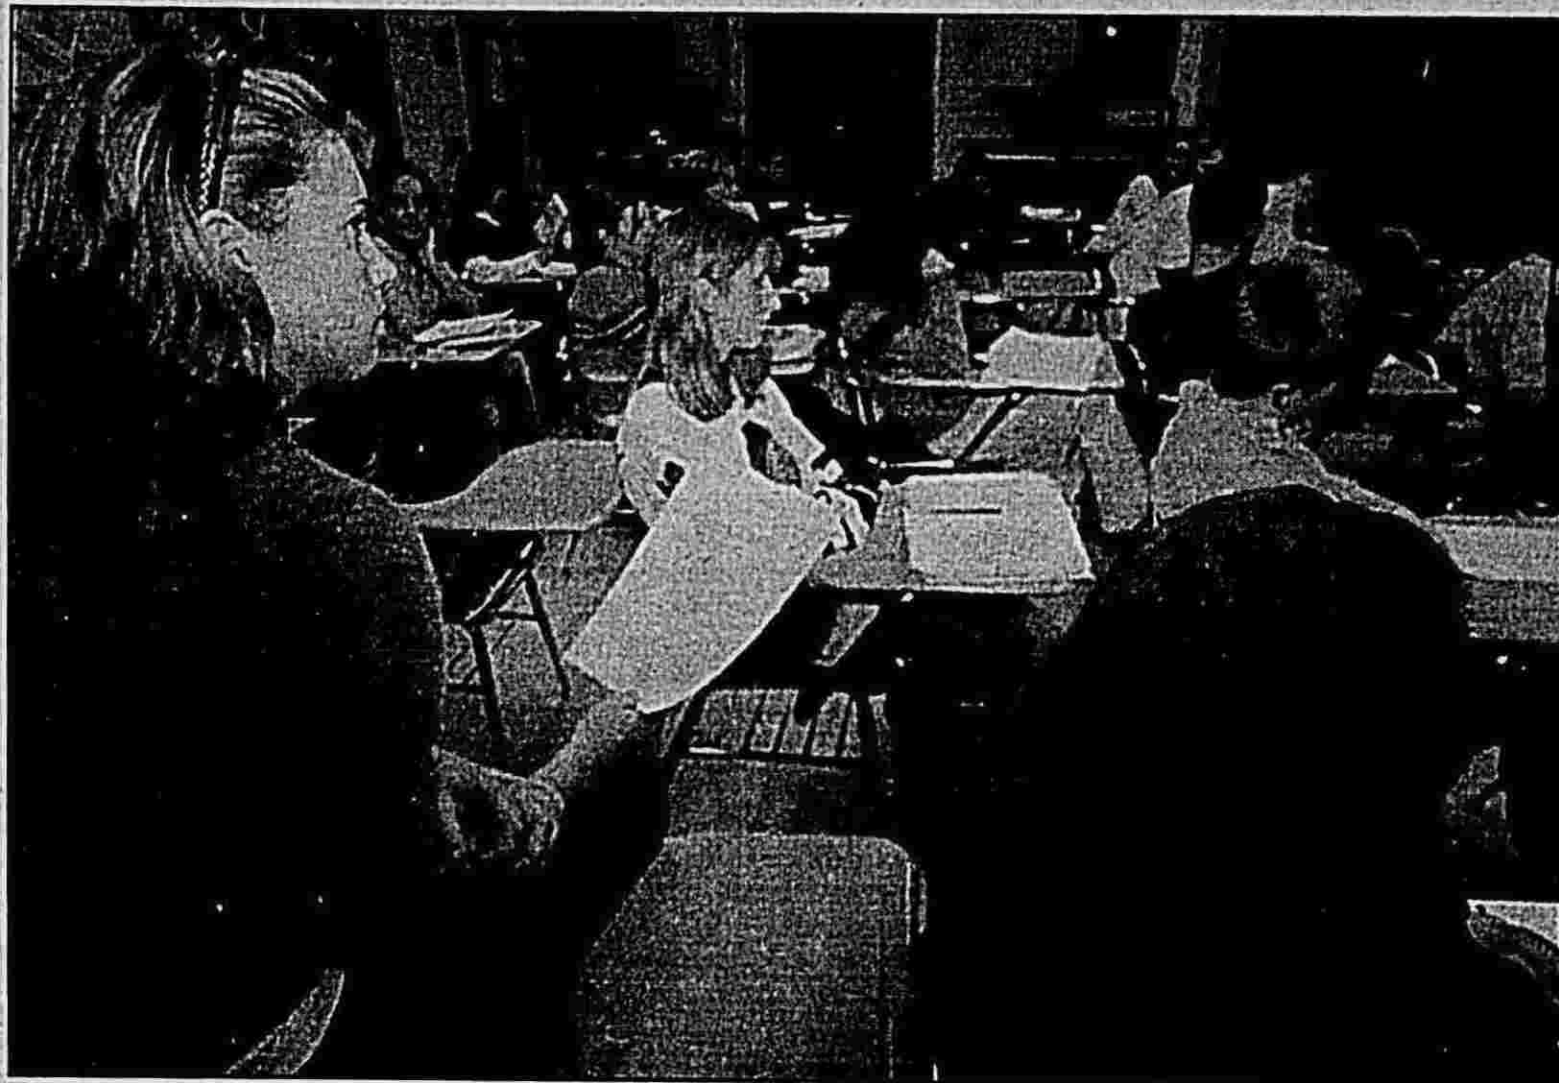

The other one is the Tom-Tom, published by students at Antioch Community High School.

Every third Sunday morning of the month in the school year, editors, writers and Publication Advisor Michael Gordy bring the stories and photographs together on the school's computers in the journalism lab. By the end of the week, 5,000 issues of the paper are printed by Southern Lakes Media. Tom-Tom students then distribute their work throughout Lindenhurst, Lake Villa and Antioch.

It is a newspaper so good that it is on the verge of entering a national hall of fame for journalism excellence.

"We believe in quality journalism," said Editor-in-Chief Louis Korom. "That's what we've been trying to do this year."

He made the remark during a presentation to the Antioch Rotary Club on Feb. 25 at Columbia Bay Brewery restaurant. At the time, he was holding a $1,200 digital camera that the editors had bought with money donated by Antioch Rotarians. The editor also was holding a digital camera donated by Sequoit Pride.

Digital cameras capture images on a computer disk so the image may be seen and stored on a computer screen. It eliminates the need to process film and scan photographs to make them usable in a newspaper.

As editor of a student financed newspaper, Korom also was acknowledging assistance the paper receives from community residents. It is a regular aspect of their work at the student published community newspaper.

The Tom-Tom is published for ACHS students, but it is intended to be of interest to people in Lindenhurst, Lake Villa, and Antioch. "There isn't one set audience," said Korom.

"I think we try to look better than just a high school newspaper," said Managing Editor Krista Hintz. She said the editors and writers try to present to parents, community, and students a general interest newspaper.

As a general interest newspaper, the ties between the school district's residents and the paper become rather extensive. Groups like the Rotarians and the Antioch Woman's Club help support the paper, but local businesses also advertise in it. Copies of the paper usually are stacked on area newsstands between piles of the Chicago Tribune and the Sun-Times.

The burden of so much public exposure is that editors consider the issue of quality journalism very important.

Hintz said that among her tasks is managing the paper's contest

Foresta wants to continue trustee role

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Antioch Village Trustee Wayne Foresta seeks his third term in the April 13 election. He is the only incumbent trustee seeking re-election.

Foresta has enjoyed public service and is gratified by the opportunity to work with residents and groups throughout Antioch. For him it also has been an opportunity to help Antioch grow economically stronger.

He expects to continue to work as a bridge between Antioch residents and village services.

Wayne Foresta has served as village trustee since 1991. "I was appointed as Finance (Committee) Chairman when I first got on board in 1991," he said. "I have been heading that committee ever since."

Foresta: "I consider myself an independent."

"Basically, (I'm) trying to keep the village working and trying not to separate the village, as a village, and the residents. (I'm) trying to keep everything going as a community as a whole rather than breaking it up," he said.

For Trustee Foresta, one of the most important aspects of Antioch is its volunteer spirit and he wants to help it grow and sustain itself.

"As a village, we try to be accommodating to the service groups because there's a lot of service groups here and they do provide a lot of support for the village." For him a positive feature of Antioch government is the mutual support between these groups and the people in government.

"I look at the things that the chamber, in combination with the village, have put together." He

Rescue squad hosts 'Awareness Day' Sunday

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Antioch Rescue Squad will host a community awareness open house Sunday, March 14, for area residents and families.

"We're anticipating opening up the building between noon and 4 o'clock," said Wayne Sobczak, chief of the rescue squad.

The event is "Community Awareness Day."

Also participating will be the Antioch Fire Department First Fire Protection District and the Antioch Police Department. It is intended as an afternoon of fun with activities for children and adults.

The fire department will have an equipment display. Police officers will also be available with activities.

Events include: tours of emergency vehicles, learning about fire safety, learning about bicycle safety, identification fingerprinting for children, blood pressure screening. There will be an opportunity for people to register to vote.

"We're going to have some things available for young kids that they can take home with them as souvenirs," Sobczak said.

"We'll have the ambulance open," he said. There will be demonstrations of heart monitoring equipment, blood pressure screenings, and oxygen saturation equipment.

Oxygen saturation equipment allows rescue personnel to determine if a person has enough oxygen in their blood to keep them alert. "It's a good gauge for us when we suspect a person is having respiratory difficulty," he said.

Community residents and families are encouraged to spend some time at the rescue squad building located behind the fire department building on Orchard Street. The address of the rescue squad is 835 Holbek Drive.

TOM-TOM: ACHS produces community paper of merit

submissions as well as its fund-raisers. The contests reflect a commitment to quality. The fund raisers reflect a commitment to paying their bills.

"Every month we have a bake sale," she said. The sales have been held at State Bank of The Lakes, and this year they are at First National Bank-Employee Owned. Baked goods are also sold to students at school.

"We use it for a cash fund," she said. The money pays for film, processing costs, and supplies that are needed to put the paper together.

"In December, we have a candy cane sale," Hintz said. "It's like a candy-gram."

Kristen Hungarland is the financial manager. "I'm in charge of all the incoming money from the advertising we do," she said. "I deal with the ad clients."

All journalism students are required to bring in five advertisers per issue as part of their work on the newspaper. Hungarland said that it takes initiative to obtain the advertising, but it is not difficult. "We're well known in the community," she said. "Advertisers are always happy with the service they receive."

The January issue had 78 advertisements from a full-range of community businesses in Antioch, Lindenhurst, and Lake Villa including both The Advertiser and The News-Sun.

Korom told Rotarians that the paper takes its lead for producing quality journalism from the Chicago Tribune. This year, the paper went towards a Tribune-style paper with an emphasis on content. "That was our focus," he said later. All the editors are looking for ways to make the paper as good as a professional newspaper, according to Korom.

Feedback suggests they may be at or near their goal. Hintz works on the entries to competitive evaluations so they may learn how to improve the quality of their work. They receive feedback, and awards, from National Scholastic Press Association, Kettle Moraine Press Association, and Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

"We're among the top schools who submit to these competitions in the nation," Hintz said.

From Columbia, the Tom-Tom has received the Gold Medal Award. "That's their highest award," said Korom.

For nine years, the paper has been an award winning paper in competitions sponsored by the National Scholastic Press Association. "We received their All-American rating," Korom said of last year's paper. "If we get it next year, we will be elected into the NSPA Hall of Fame for student newspapers."

The hall of fame honors papers that have received the All-American rating each year for a decade. Korom told Rotarians that there are only 32 papers in the nation named to the hall of fame.

Students work on the Tom-Tom and receive course credit. "It is a class," said Hintz. "We do get English credit for it."

The staff meets every day. There is a sophomore year introductory journalism course. Juniors and seniors are the ones who actually work on the paper. "I believe right now there are 23," Hintz said.

Credit for the quality of the paper is attributable to factors such as staff attitude, quality of equipment, support from the community, student interest and support, school officials' support, advertising, and Gordy.

Korom said, "You won't find a better teacher on the planet than Mike Gordy." Gordy is an English teacher, publications advisor, and the school's web site coordinator.

"He'll teach you how to do something if you don't know how to do it."

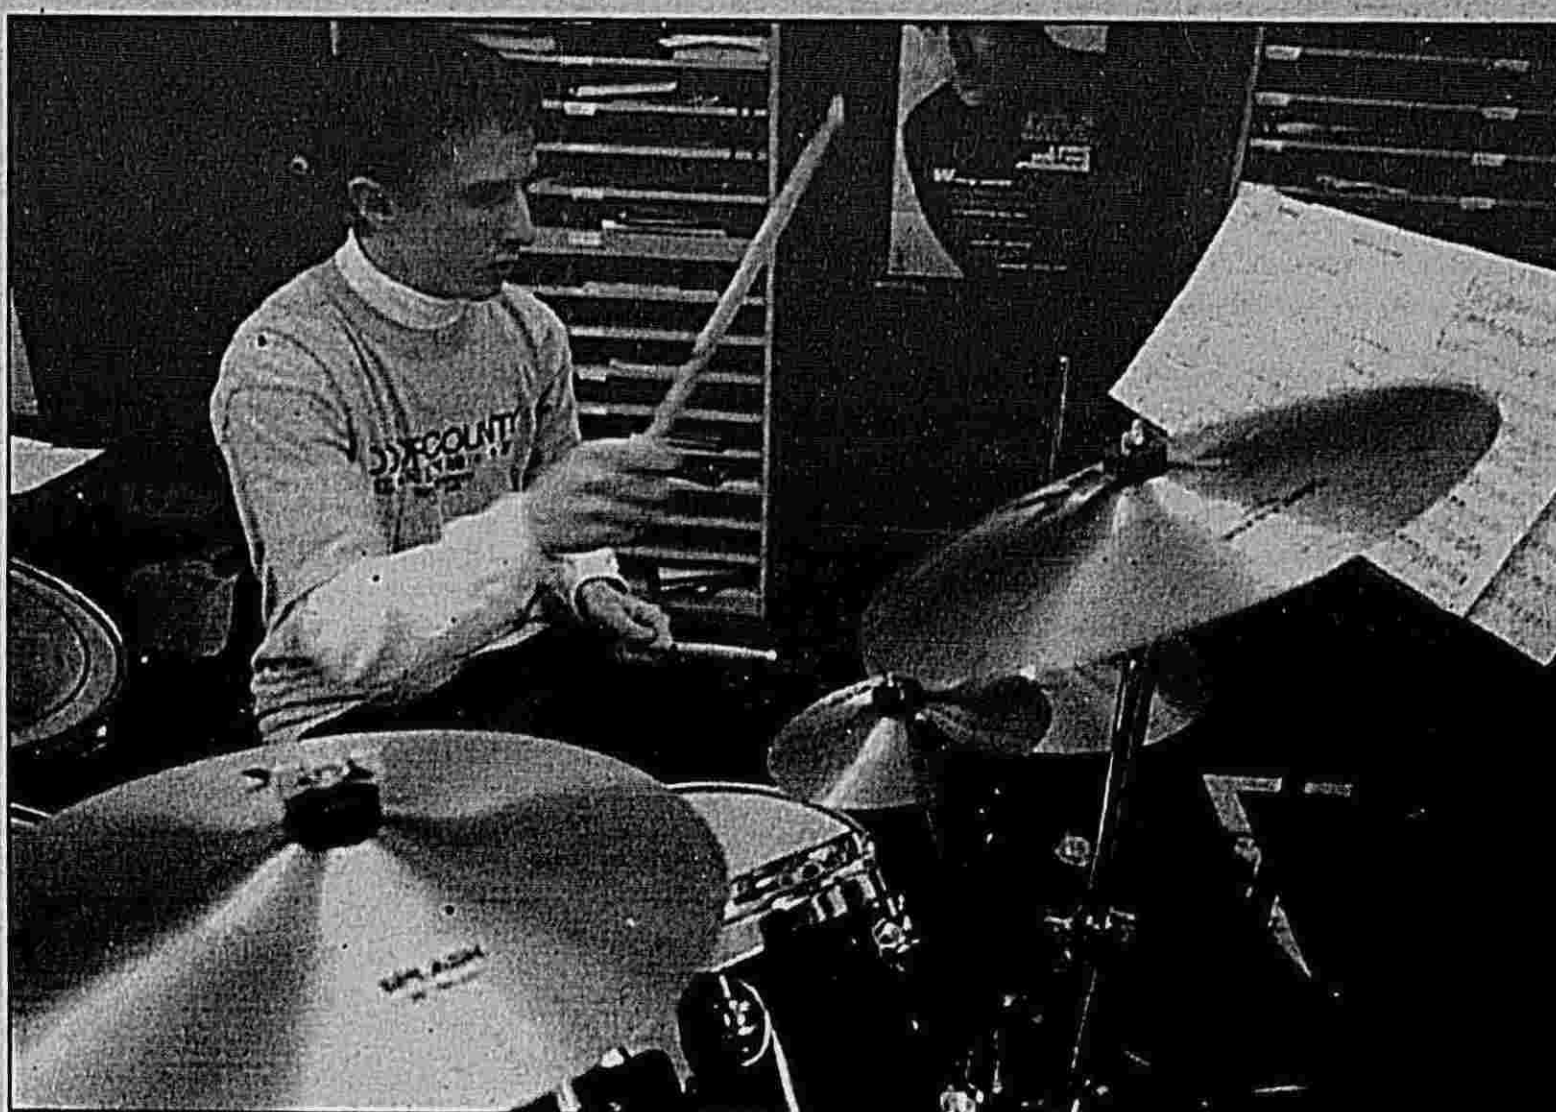

Hungarland said that Gordy uses competitive journalism to prepare his students for college academic life. The skills that are learned while publishing the Tom-Tom are applicable to other academic work that students must do.

"The Tom-Tom is a great medium for so much because we work so hard," said Korom.

Right now the staff is evaluating candidates for next year's editors for the paper. "As a group, senior editors decide on next year's staff," said Hintz. There is a period of transition during the final issues of the year.

"We want to throw some praise out for Antioch Community High School," said Korom. "Antioch Community High School has done so much for the staff."

He said that the school administrators, Michael Gordy, and the faculty bring a professional attitude to their approach with the newspaper. That attitude, in turn, affects how the students approach their work on the paper.

Auctioneer's Night set for mid-April

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

The Seventh Annual Auctioneer's Night for St. Peter Catholic Church is Saturday, April 17 starting at 6 p.m. in Father Hanley Hall.

Donations for the auction are now being collected.

The evening of both silent and live auction action will be capped with a "special" appearance by the great Grease Band after the auction," according to Jim Orticelli. He is a member of the steering committee.

The evening includes a raffle with a top prize of free tuition next year at St. Peter's School. The prize is transferable, in case the winner has no school age children.

The full-evening of entertainment and fund-raising will be set in the 1950s. "There's a 1950s theme to the auction," Orticelli said. "We're going to serve period food, a 1950's menu."

There will be cocktails at 6 p.m. with dinner starting at 7 p.m. The auction gets underway at 8 p.m.

"Donations would be greatly appreciated," said Orticelli. People with good items for the auction can contact Orticelli, 838-9646, or Wayne Sobczak, 395-1010.

Tickets are available for $10 from a variety of sources. People may buy tickets at the Sense and Sensibility Program after church mass and also both before and after school. Tickets are available in the school office, 900 St. Peter Street, and from Tiffany Real Estate offices, 549 Lake Street.

Tickets may be purchased from steering committee members. They include Orticelli, Sobczak, Linda Pedersen, Julie Konvalinka, and Diane Nelson.

Police receive safety ed donation

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Members of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Antioch Veterans of Foreign Wars Sequoia Post 4551 have donated funds to the Antioch Police Department.

The auxiliary made the donation Friday, Feb. 26 to Lt. Ron Roth. The funds are to be used by the Antioch Police Department in their juvenile education programs.

The auxiliary's donation is part of a series of activities to promote safety education. Members also have distributed safety reflector tape for straps on backpacks used by students, according to Nell Kangeter, auxiliary senior vice president.

"Also, we handed out some strips that little kids can put on their bikes," she said.

Community Chorus plans Easter event

Antioch Community Chorus will present "The Crucifixion" in the sanctuary of the Benedictine Abbey on Palm Sunday, March 28 at 7:30 p.m. Ralph Brooke, of Antioch, will conduct. Featured local soloists are Wanda Sobczak, Ken Smouse, and John Desblens. Nicholas Solomon, of Deerfield, and Norman Miranda, of Kenosha, will also sing.

"It was one of the nicest events I've ever seen in any community," said Eric Olson, one of the participants in Antioch's Daddy Daughter Date, Night, Saturday, Feb. 20. "It was well attended."

"The volunteers were really nice," he said. "It went very well," said Laurie Stahl, director of the Antioch Parks and Recreation Department. The department sponsored the evening for 742 people at Antioch Upper grade school.

Dave Hoeh, owner of Antioch Floral, 660 West Route 173, provided 450 red, white, or pink carnation corsages. "They did wonderful corsages," Stahl said.

"Walgreens helped us with the Polaroid film supply." Every participant got a photograph.

There was soda and balloons. "Everybody got an ice-cream sun-dae."

Dave Gronke, of Dancin' Machine 1, was the disc jockey for the event. "He did a wonderful job," Stahl said. "He had everything that young girls liked."

"Ken Andrews over there was very helpful," she said of one of the upper grade school staff members.

Stahl said that all volunteers were very helpful. They included members of the Parks and Recreation Board, National Junior Honor Society students from the upper grade school, National Honor Society students from Antioch Community High School, and other students who just wanted to help out.

Oh, what a wonderful evening was Saturday, March 6 as the Antioch Junior Woman's Club presented Fred Klett and Patti Vasquez in an evening of comedy, food, visiting with friends, raffles and a silent auction. Vasquez provided the edgier humor of the evening about her folks (well, her Mom mostly), her family, growing up, and kissing. Klett was fabulous. He had the audience laughing from the moment he started. And, he was not just doing prepared material.

Klett spent a healthy amount of time giving the woman's club members grief, mostly in a discussion about the balloons suspended halfway between the ceiling and tables. Antioch Junior Woman's Club President Cathl Hackel was a consistent target because her, really good looking, dress matched the black and white check design of all the tablecloths. Klett was spontaneous, and it was wonderfully funny.

Klett looked at two balloons gently balancing themselves on the rim of the basketball hoop where they had landed as the helium holding them up gave up. One balloon was balanced on the backboard's top edge.

Comedy Night was an inspired evening.

Swing Street Café '99 offers music, dance, and food tonight and Saturday in a transformed south gymnasium of Antioch Community High School.

This annual showcase of student talent will be Friday and Saturday, March 12 and 13. The doors open at 7 p.m.

"The show starts at 7:30 p.m. and it ends around 10," said Sheri Fries.

Swing Street Café presents the musical and dance talent of the jazz ensembles, concert and symphonic bands, soloists, the Show Choir, the Fortunate Eight choir, and theater members.

The gymnasium ceiling is lowered to create a more intimate jazz club atmosphere for the room. Tables, plants, and students serving food add to a relaxed evening.

"On the menu will be nachos, pizza, desserts, and beverages," said Fries. "We've added baked potato this year and a fresh vegetable tray."

"We have a lot of parent help making the desserts."

Larry Mondie's Baskin and Robbins Antioch franchise has made a donation for the evening's food. Dominos is helping to provide the pizzas.

"We will also have a variety of raffle prizes drawn each night that were donated by area businesses."

The raffles this year are for merchandise. There is no 50/50 raffle this year, according to Fries.

Tickets are at the door at are $6 for adults, $3 for students, and children under five may attend without cost.

"The money generated by this fund raiser will go towards the instrumental music program at Antioch Community High School," Fries said. "It's a major fund-raiser for the band."

The money helps to defray costs for travel and for band camp instruction opportunities.

Fries and Lynne Keller have brought this annual event together with the members of ACHS Music and Performance Sponsors, AMPS.

Fire fighter raffle seeks infrared helmet

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Antioch fire fighters are sponsoring a raffle to obtain one of the most advanced pieces of rescue equipment to find victims in a burning building.

First prize for ticket buyers is $5,000 cash. The top prize for fire fighters will be a camera that distinguishes images by heat and lets them see through black smoke.

"One in every 20 people will win a cash prize," said Captain Sam Frankson of the Antioch Fire Department First Fire Protection District.

To support the firefighter raffle for the expensive piece of equipment, the Antioch Chamber of Commerce and Industry has postponed its own CAN Raffle.

"It's the chamber's way of supporting the fire department," said President Barbara Porch. "We will postpone the CAN raffle until the fire department has completed theirs."

The CAN Raffle raises money for the chamber's "Community Action Now" program for the downtown area. By postponing their own raffle, chamber members are able to offer their support to a fund raiser that benefits the entire Antioch area.

"This is the most modern fire technology for saving lives in the fire service," said Frankson. "When you walk in (the burning building) with the camera, you can see everything."

It is a camera that helps firefighters see through smoke and pinpoint hot spots.

The manufacturer of the CAIRNS IRIS Thermal Imaging Camera has compiled a videotape to demonstrate the operation of the camera. The demonstration shows the reality of fire fighting that virtually no one every sees.

Smoke renders fire fighters blind.

Antioch fire fighters can regain their vision with the IRIS Thermal Camera since it will be able to see bodies and where the fire is located. This will improve survival chances for victims and will allow fire fighters to immediately locate a fire to extinguish it more quickly.

Tickets for the raffle are sold at the Antioch fire station and at banks in downtown Antioch.

Only 200 tickets will be sold, and they cost $150 apiece. The raffle will raise $30,000 of which $10,000 will be given away as 10 cash prizes.

The drawing will be Sunday, April 11 during an open house at the fire station from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m.

Driving Through Europe

by JIM WARREN,
President, North Star Travel, Inc.

As many of you may already know, the train is my preferred mode of travel in Europe. It's economical, and I don't have to worry about trying to read maps, foreign road signs and drive at the same time.

There is, however, much to be said in favor of renting a car in Europe. And with the opening of the Channel Tunnel (Chunnel), driving from London to Paris is now a reality! More about that in a moment.

Who hasn't dreamed of zipping down the highway at over 100 MPH in a cool looking Mercedes-Benz, or maybe a BMW? Realize that dream by renting a car in Germany where there are no speed limits on the autobahns.

You may, however, want to slow down and enjoy one of Germany's more scenic routes such as the Romantic Road, the Fairy Tale Road, the German Wine Road and the Castle Road.

If flowers are your thing, plan on visiting Holland between March and May and follow the tourist route called "The Flower Tour" through the tulip fields. It will also take you to the Japanese Garden in the Hague or the international rose exhibition in Westbroek Park.

As I mentioned earlier, you can now drive from Britain to France via the "Chunnel." Actually, you drive your car onto a train for the 35-minute crossing under the North Sea from Folkestone, England to Calais, France.

Even the problems of cars in Britain being of the right-hand-drive variety, while those in the rest of Europe are left-hand-drive, have been solved by Hertz. At the end of the tunnel you can trade your rental car for one with the steering wheel on the correct side for the country in which you are entering.

You'll find that with the exception of Germany's autobahn, France's autoroutes and the Italian autostrade, there are few expressways in Europe. Allow yourself plenty of driving time. About twice what you may be used to.

Also avoid using your horn while driving in Europe. In some towns it's even illegal. Europeans flash their lights instead.

Remember too, that gas in Europe is very expensive (that price on the station sign is per liter, multiply by about 4 to get the gallon price). Discount self-service stations do exist, though not as plentiful as back home, so fill up when you find one.

Eggcellent Easter adventure rolls April 3

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Registration for Antioch's Eggcellent Easter Adventure for children 1 to 10 years old is now underway.

Children must be registered to participate in the egg hunt at Williams Park on April 3 at approximately 11 a.m.

The Easter Bunny will be present. "We're taking reservations now at the Antioch Parks Office," said Laurie Stahl, director of parks and recreation. "I advise parents that they should register in advance."

Parents may register their children for $2 until Friday, April 2. There is no rain date.

"We hunt rain or shine, so pray for sun," Stahl said.

"We have four age groups," she said. Children 1 to 2 years old, 3 to 4 years old, 5 to 7, and 8 to 10. Each group wears a different color wrist band to help organize the groups of children.

"They'll each have their turn to go out and look for eggs. Each age group will go by itself," Stahl said. "They get 10 eggs each filled with prizes and Jelly Bellies, donated by Lakeland Publishers."

Children will be provided with plastic bags in which to place their collected 10 eggs.

"Two children from each group will get a coupon in their eggs to win a special Easter basket."

The Easter Bunny will be in town. "She will be at the Senior Center on Friday and Saturday," Stahl said.

Parents can bring their own camera to take a picture with the Easter Bunny.

The Easter Bunny will be at the Antioch Area Senior Center, 817 Holbek Drive, 395-7120, on Friday, April 2 from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m. and on Saturday, April 3, from noon to 3 p.m.

Lakes Area Community Band welcomes spring with concert

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Lakes Area Community Band will host its first concert of the year on Sunday, March 21 at 3 p.m. at Antioch Community High School in the auditorium.

"It's a Spring Concert of popular music," said Steve Porch.

Porch is the musical director of the community band, which is supported by Festival Arts of Antioch.

The concert will feature a variety of popular music and introduce a special flute ensemble of the band to the community.

"Complimentary tickets may be picked up at the State Bank of The Lakes and the Antioch Chamber of Commerce and Industry," Porch said.

Free tickets also will be available at the door.

Director Porch will be interviewed by Joan Hammell about the band's upcoming season on WKRS

Radio (1440 kHz) on Thursday, March 18 from 11 to 11:30 a.m.

"We're doing an overture," said Porch. "We're doing some Leroy Anderson."

"We finally have our Strauss waltz ready for playing." There will be a selection of light classical pieces.

"We also are featuring our flute section in one particular selection," he said. They will perform "The Entertainer" by Scott Joplin.

Porch said, "The band is growing in numbers." There are about 35 to 37 members who play with them regularly.

"We still need—desperately, desperately—low brass," he said. "We'd love to have some tuba players, trombone, French horn."

All players are welcome to join, but he especially wants to hear from the low notes.

Refreshments are served at the end of the concert.

"The best access is from the tennis court area," Porch said.

Chamber boosts Expo/Trade show

Annual show set for March 27, 28

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Top prize for two lucky people who attend the Antioch Expo/Trade Show is $1,000 towards the travel destination of their choice, anywhere in the world.

The Antioch Chamber of Commerce and Industry will host its Third Annual Antioch Business Expo/Trade Show on Saturday and Sunday, March 27 and 28 at Antioch Community High School in the gymnasium.

The show will feature exhibitors, demonstrations, give-aways, and entertainment for the entire family. For the first time, visitors will be able to purchase merchandise from exhibitors at the show.

"It's going great," said Susie Kolle, marketing representative of the chamber. She said there will be a full range of exhibitors. "Mostly they are from Antioch."

Kolle said the exposition and trade show is a good opportunity for people to learn what Antioch has to offer shoppers. "(Shoppers) are going to be exposed to businesses they may not be familiar with in Antioch and maybe find a new, close-by product and service that they can use," Kolle said. "They can create a personal relationship with the people who own their businesses here in Antioch."

"Exhibitors have the opportunity to sell merchandise," Kolle said. "They can sell anything related directly to their primary business."

To enter the travel package drawing, people who attend the expo/trade show must visit each merchant. "It's a $1,000 worth of travel to anywhere, one each day," said Kolle. "The winner of the travel award will have the opportunity to customize their travel plans through Travel by Design of Antioch."

Sue Ryan at Travel by Design, 345 Park Avenue, will work with the winners to make arrangements.

There will be activities for children.

That event is sponsored by the First National Bank of Chicago, 425 Lake Street, in Antioch.

Retirement bug claiming long-time coaches

They always say that bad things happen in threes. Now, while it's not necessarily a "bad" thing, area coaches are retiring faster than area gamblers are filing out their NCAA brackets.

It all seemed to start with Libertyville boys varsity coach Max Sanders, or should I say former coach Sanders. Anyway, his retirement from teaching and coaching has been known for some time, and his official retirement from high school basketball happened last week when Libertyville was eliminated from the playoff by Grayslake in the first round of the Waukegan Sectional.

But it seems that every school in Lakeland's coverage area has a long-time coach retiring—and they're all doing it in the same two-week period.

On the heels of Sanders' retirement, Libertyville's other long-time coach, Tom Murphy, stepped down as girls varsity basketball coach. Murphy, while not necessarily retiring, does leave the Lady Wildcats with over 450 wins under his belt.

Murphy's main competitor in the North Suburban Conference, Bruce Campbell, announced his retirement this week as well, although it has been known for some time.

Also stepping down was George Faoro, an assistant coach with the Grant varsity boys basketball team, who spent 30 years with the program.

Another "casualty" of the recent retiring trend was Wauconda's boys varsity basketball coach Gary Rajkowski.

And finally, Grant's varsity boys basketball coach Tom Maple will be joining the ranks of the retired after next season.

Why the rash of retiring? Who knows, but most of these coaches came into the profession at about the same time, and, surprisingly, they all endured at the same schools for so long. Murphy, Campbell and Sanders have been battling it out in the NSC for a long time, and each coach has his own "legendary" status among former players, fans and co-workers.

The North Suburban Conference recently named its All-Conference Team for the 1998-99 boys basketball season. Making the list were Don Lackey, 6-4 junior, Antioch; Greg Belcher, 6-2 senior, Lake Forest; Ryan Schreen, 6-1 senior, Libertyville; Doug Rippberger, 6-2 senior, Mundelein; Ricky Irby, 6-4 senior, North Chicago Scott Winston; 6-7 senior, Stevenson; John Fetter, 6-1 senior, Stevenson; Mike Brandow, 6-5 senior, Warren; Jourdain Milot, 6-2 junior, Warren; Langston Hughes, 6-0 senior, Warren; Darnell Fields, 6-7 senior, Zion-Benton; and Rod Henry, 6-3 senior, Zion-Benton.

A pair of local girls were named to the Illinois Basketball Coaches Association (IBCA) All-State special mention team. Libertyville senior forward Allison Farrington and Grayslake junior center Jenny Wessel were named to the all-state squad last week, as each led their respective team to a good record and made it deep into the sectional playoffs.

ACHS roller coaster season over

By JOHN PHELPS
Staff Reporter

It was a season of ups and downs for the Antioch varsity boys basketball team.

"That was probably the only disappointing thing," said head coach Jeff Dresser, in his 11th year as coach and 22nd overall at Antioch.

"We played some good basketball but at times we didn't know which team would show up."

Antioch finished 14-14 overall and 5-9 (sixth place) in the always tough North Suburban.

Next year, however, looks as if it will be more on the upside of things, with the likes of 6-4 forward Don Lackey returning for his senior campaign.

Lackey, an all-conference and all-county selection as a sophomore, was recently named to this year's all-conference team and if things go as planned, should repeat in the all-county category as well.

"He's very versatile," said Dresser. "You can play him anywhere. He especially steps up in the big games and overall is a great package."

This year, Lackey, who averaged 15 points and seven rebounds a game, was also named to the second team all-tournament at The Rockford Christmas Tournament, which saw the Sequoits finish second.

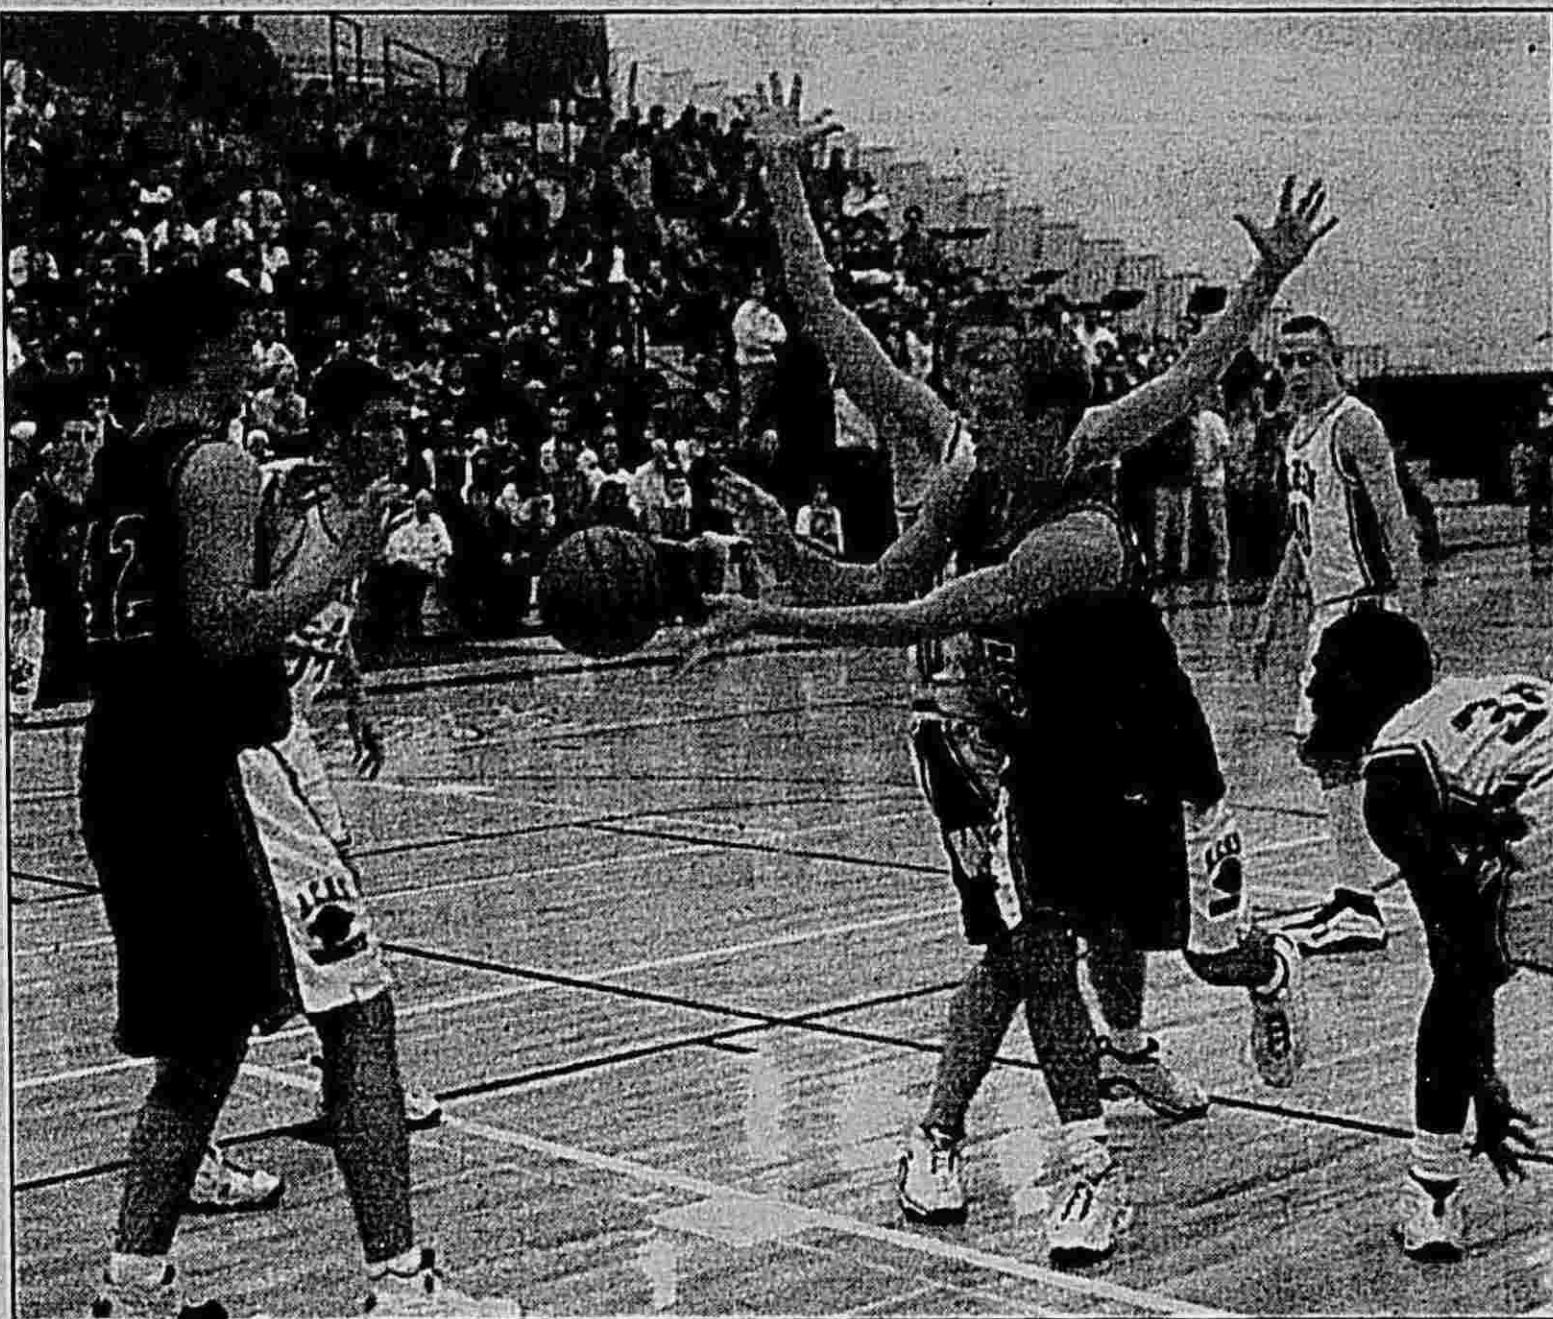

Lackey led the Sequoits last Friday with 15 points as they were eliminated by top-seeded Warren, 59-39.

"Finishing second at Rockford was definitely one of our highlights," said Dresser. "We also beat Zion-Benton at their place and Mundelein here, both big wins against quality opponents with excellent records."

Antioch will lose six seniors, but in turn, will have four starters back, two juniors and two sophomores.

With that in mind, Dresser's biggest concern in the off-season will be filling the holes left by 6-7 center Matt Koss and 6-5 forward Brian Soldano.

"Both can score and defend well inside," said Dresser. "We'll miss that because our sophomores aren't too big, so the post position will have to be addressed."

On that note, Antioch will look to be more of a perimeter team next season, with the likes of Lackey and guards Brandon Clutts, a 6-1 junior, and Eric White (6-3), who was one of the starting sophomores this year.

Aaron James, a 6-4 junior center this year, looks to stay healthy and give Antioch inside scoring punch.

Kyle Heinrich, (5-9) and Ari Brown (6-1) will both be juniors next year and bring their shooting and ball-handling skills to the table.

Also returning will be 6-2 center Kyle Christopherson and 6-2 guard Paul Arnold, both juniors this year, and 6-2 sophomore guard Luke Denoma.

Lost to graduation are guards Pat

Straub and Jon Jordan, and forwards Brett McCullom and Dan Pendergast, both of the latter having made major scoring contributions.

"Things won't be so bad," said Dresser. "We'll be a little smaller but finishing .500 this year—it was a good rebuilding spot for us."

"We got the max out of the kids and that's all you can ask for. I think we'll be up for the challenge going into next year."

Lady Blue Devils hoop icon steps down

Bruce Campbell retires after 34 years as Warren basketball coach

By JOHN PHELPS
Staff Reporter

The stoic position on the sidelines or the smiling, laid-back demeanor many have grown accustomed to seeing in the hallways or classrooms at Warren Township High School will be seen no more at WTHS at the end of this year.

Last Saturday, a nice crowd gathered in the banquet facility at In-Laws restaurant in Gurnee to pay tribute to another coaching legend we've become so familiar with over the years in the world of high school sports (in Lake County).

After 19 years at the helm of the Lady Blue Devil's basketball team and 34 overall at Warren, Bruce Campbell is taking a bow and stepping aside.

Yes, there are some big shoes to fill over on the Almond Road campus, the home of the Warren Lady Blue Devils.

"He's put in a lot of time coaching and teaching here at Warren," said athletic director Lenny Chimino. "We're definitely saying goodbye to one of the true role models, both in sports and in academics."

Prior to basketball, Campbell coached a very successful sophomore football team for 20 years, assisted with baseball for 10, and coached track for one.

"He's been very successful in everything he's touched or been a part of here," said Chimino.

'It's been a great run. I wasn't sure how far I wanted to go with teaching and coaching when I started at Warren, but I'm glad I stayed'

Bruce Campbell

With a major in biology from Eastern Illinois University and Master's degree in Guidance from Northern Illinois University, Campbell started off teaching biology and science and continued to do so for the next 24 years.

He then directed his attention toward his major and has been a counselor for the past 12 years.

"It's always difficult when you lose a quality person like Bruce," said Ron Shelton, assistant principal at Warren.

"As far as playing an instrumental role on the staff/faculty and developing the girls basketball program, we couldn't have asked for anyone better."

Everyone knows Campbell most prominently for his achievements and success on the hardwood.

In 19 years, he earned three Northwest Suburban Conference titles, five North Suburban Conference crowns, nine regional titles and two sectional titles.

Also included in his impressive portfolio is one trip to the "Sweet 16" and one appearance in the "Elite Eight" in 1987-88, with a team that went 27-4. Warren followed up the next season by going 27-2.

Presently, Campbell ranks 14th among Illinois High School girls basketball coaches with 402 victories. His overall record in 19 years was 402-106.

Perhaps one of the people who will miss Campbell the most is assistant girls varsity coach Colette Erbach.

Erbach, a Gurnee resident and graduate of Carthage College, is the only assistant coach in Warren's history and has been by Campbell's side for the past 12 seasons.

Erbach played for Campbell for four years before graduating from Warren in 1983.

"He's been like a mentor to me," she said. "I'll miss him as a coach and as a person because he taught

On Tuesday, March 23, Antioch Community High School will host a meeting for any students who are interested in participating in hockey for the 1999-2000 school year. Parents will need to attend with their athlete.

This meeting is open to any interested incoming 8th grade students and their parents. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in the cafeteria. Any questions can be directed to Steve Schoenfelder, assistant athletic director, at 395-1421, ext. 234.

CAMPBELL: Retirement

me everything I know about coaching and winning and losing, although you don't want to get too comfortable with it."

Erbach went on to say that Campbell's best quality is always knowing how to get the most out of his players.

"He really knows basketball and its amazing with female athletes (he has two daughters of his own)," she said. "He develops great relationships with his players and to play for him and coach with him has been an honor."

Campbell responded by saying that "You're only as good as your assistant coaches, and Colette is a winner and has been outstanding to work with. She's great with kids and really knows and is a tremendous asset to the program."

The Lady Devils posted a 285-61 record in Erblich's 12 years at Warren—a school which is known not only for excellence in athletics, but excellence in academics as well.

Last year, ten of Campbell's players were named to the all-academic team.

"The kids have been tremendous over the years," said the 57-year-old Campbell. "I've been very blessed and it's been a pleasure working with so many great students and athletes. They all work very hard in sports and in the classroom."

Furthermore, Campbell went on to say that so many people have touched him over the years at Warren.

"The families and friends of students, the faculty, and perhaps most importantly, my family—they're all special people and I really appreciate their effort and support." With some much deserved time off lying in the wings, Campbell seems to have a firm grasp of what he plans on pursuing.

"Definitely hitting the little white ball around more," he said with a grin, referring to his passion for golf.

But perhaps most importantly, Campbell, married to wife Sharon for 35 years, looks forward to spending more time with the family and having more opportunity of watching the young one's grow up.

"It's been a great run," said Campbell. "I wasn't sure how far I wanted to go with teaching and coaching when I started at Warren, but I'm glad I stayed."

As a token of appreciation, Chimino opened the ceremonies by presenting Campbell with a $400 gift certificate to Bass Pro Shops—now he can buy plenty of golf balls to make a hole-in-one with, just like he did at Warren.

1999 Ford Contour provides fun driving in practical package

One drive will surprise you. Even if you're spending lots of time on the job and with the kids, you can still enjoy a great driving experience in the four-door Ford Contour. "One drive is all it takes to show people how much fun you can have driving a Contour, which has been praised by the automotive media for its spirited power, precision and responsiveness," said Julie Roehm, Contour brand manager. "And the best part is, Contour owners can also enjoy the functionality and durability of this zippy sedan."

Contour buyers want a car that balances their need for a practical four-door car with their desire for a fun and sophisticated drive. For many, Contour is their first four-door car, and buyers want a car with youthful features that can still provide the basics like shuttling kids around town or making sales calls with room and comfort.

Contour's great handling is improved further in 1999 with revisions to the sub-frame and A-arm design resulting in reduced friction and improved steering precision and handling. Braking stability also has been improved. Contour now shares the same suspension design as its European cousin, Mondeo. Front suspension has been improved to provide braking stability on different road surfaces.

More leg room. After receiving fresh exterior styling last year, the 1999 Contour receives interior improvements. The front seats have been redesigned, adding a half-inch of knee room and 1.2 inches of legroom and rear-seat passengers.

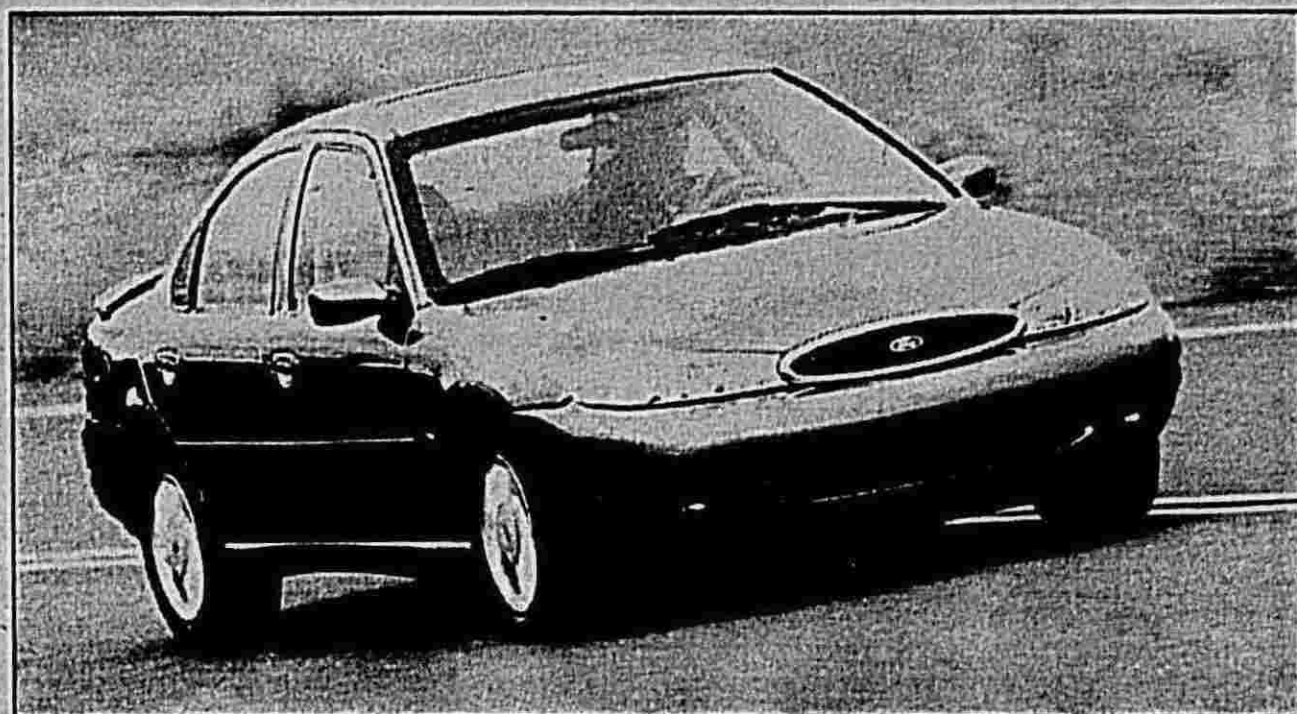

On the exterior, two new colors, Amazon Green and Medium Steel Blue, replace Dark Satin Green and Light Denim Blue.

The 1999 Contour offers a 15-gallon gas tank, new front brake caliper housings and second-generation air bags.

Three different series offered. Consumers have a series of three models from which to choose: the LX, SE and exciting, high-performance SVT Contour, selected as Car of the Year at the 1998 Los Angeles Auto Show.

Choice of advanced powertrains. Contour offers a choice of advanced powertrains: the Zetec 2.0-liter I-4, which delivers 125 horsepower at 5,500 rpm, and the 2.5-liter, 24-valve Duratec V-6 rated at 170 hp at 6,250 rpm. Both engines can be

Buick Cielo concept car: product details

Cielo, Buick's new concept four-door convertible, combines the comfort, convenience and security of a sedan with the freedom and exhilaration of a contemporary open-air car, according to Buick Marketing General Manager Roger W. Adams.

The most striking feature of Cielo is its top. Two permanent roof rails run fore and aft on each side featuring sliding roof panels within the rails. The drive, using the voice command "Open Roof", can turn a sedan into a convertible in a few seconds. The three opaque roof panels slide immediately out of view.

The rear window is also voice-activated and operates in a separate track. This allows it to be raised or lowered independently, or in concert with the roof.

"There are a lot of people who would buy convertibles if not for a few real or perceived concern," Adams said. "Cielo basically answers those concerns. Its roof rails and hard top panels offer safety and security. Its rear window may be left partially up to cut down on wind in the passenger compartment with the top's down. There's roominess and easy access to the seats with the doors opening at the center, hinged at the front and rear pillars, combined with recessed door sills."

Cielo's interior design is open and passenger friendly. It's simple, clean and elegant appearance allows the driver and passengers to focus on the world around them without unnecessary distractions. Many of the traditional controls are hidden from view until requested through Cielo's innovative voice-recognition technologies.

"Voice control operation is absolute state-of-the-art," said Michael E. Doble, Buick's manager of advanced concepts. In addition to controlling the top and rear window, voice actuation is used for opening and closing the car's doors, turning the radio on and off and the volume up and down, and setting climate controls, among many other comfort and convenience features.

All voice-activated functions provide voice feedback to confirm each command. The driver can choose either a male or female voice for feedback. Eventually, Cielo could be programmed to "listen" and respond in several languages.

Example: A voice commands the climate control system: "Temperature 72 degrees." The change occurs and there's an audible acknowledgment: "Temperature set at 72 degrees." At the same time, the reconfigurable color display on the instrument panel visually changes to the climate control screen with the requested temperature displayed.

A series of navigational screens can also appear on the color display. The driver initiates the navigation system with a voice command: "Navigation." The system then enters navigation mode and responds to the voice prompt: "Where would you like to go?" The color display lights up with the "Navigation Display" screen.

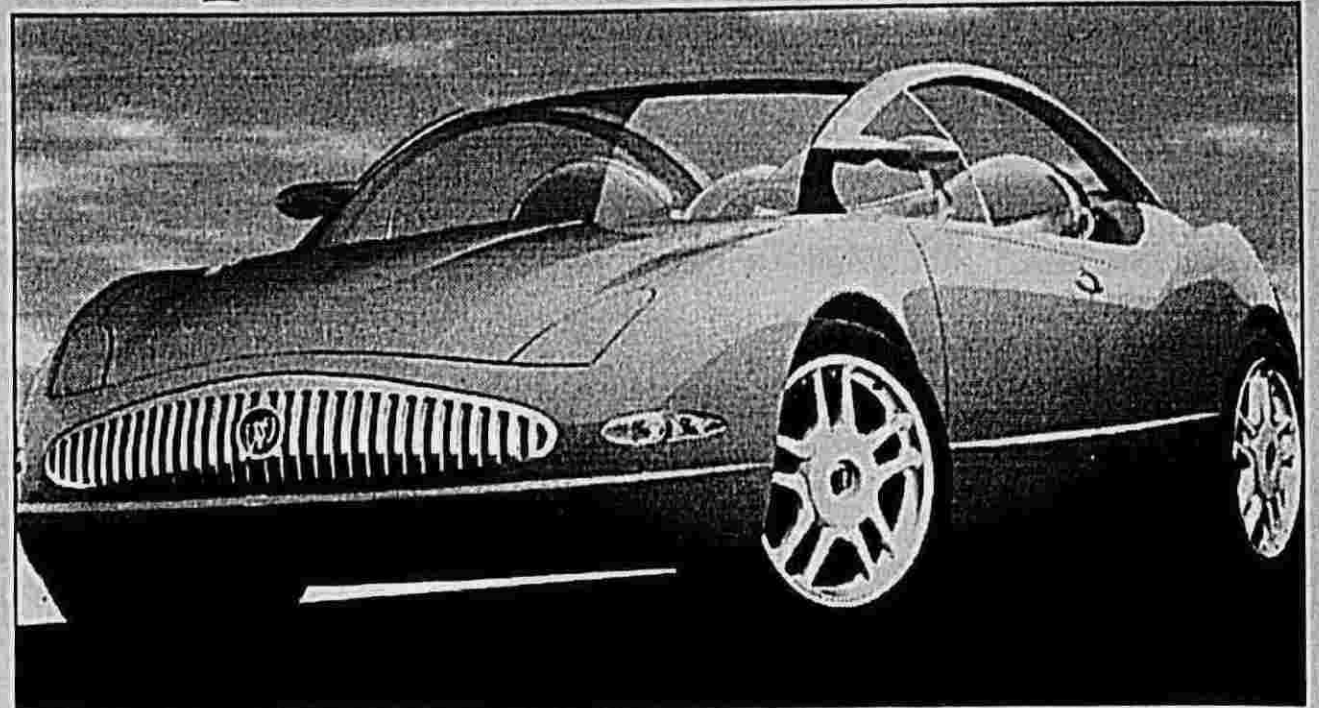

The driver then tells the system the destination: "Take me to Big Sur." The system asks routing preference: "Fastest route or scenic route?" The screen displays a new navigation screen with a map of the Big Sur area of California.

The driver, in San Francisco in this example, responds: "Fastest route." And the navigation system delivers initial directions and estimates distance and time to destination. "Please turn right on Lombard Street and proceed one mile to Van Ness Avenue. Distance to destination is 151 miles. Estimated travel time is two hours and forty-three minutes." The display highlights the route on a map while the instrument panel display provides turn-by-turn guidance.

The instrument panel display can also be customized according to the driver's personal choice. Colors, type size and font can be modified according to individual taste or pre-programmed graphic themes may be selected.

Cielo also uses an advanced totally keyless system currently being developed for production. Instead of keys, the system uses a remote control which permits the keyless locking, unlocking and operation of the car.

For added ease, Cielo's four doors are power-operated and hinged at the front and rear pillars, opening wide from the "Stub" center pillar. A structural cross beam between the center pillars provides improved safety and added structural integrity. Cielo has recessed rocker panels, sill plates and underbody extensions to allow for easy access.

In addition, Cielo rides on custom-cut radial tires by Michelin, which also created specific high-tech tires for the Buick XP2000 and Buick Signia concept cars. The innovative P245/40R20 tires are hand-carved with a special tread pattern designed specifically for Cielo.

A new look at the high cost of car neglect

Despite continuing advancements in technology, brake failure continues to be the leading cause of accidents attributable to mechanical trouble. Clearly, if you're unable to stop soon enough you're likely to be in trouble. This is the car crisis most feared by motorists. Still, industry studies list the braking system as one of the most common areas of maintenance neglect.

Mechanical failure costs our nation millions in accident costs, according to an analysis of recent figures from National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. NHTSA says motor vehicle crashes in the U.S. cost $150.5 billion annually. Deducting about a third of these that are tied to drivers "under the influence", we're still looking at a $100 billion tab for other causes. An estimated 5% or $5 billion of this cost is totally or partly attributable to failure of one or more vehicle components.

Car Care Council's research shows 9 out of 10 vehicles need some kind of maintenance. The Council suggests that if only 10% of those mechanically deficient vehicles were returned to safe driving condition, the savings could amount to $500,000,000, not to mention the suffering and pain that could be avoided.

These are expenses our society need not incur. How long since you've had someone take a look at the safety components of your car? For an informative pamphlet about vehicle check procedure, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Car Care Council, Dept. SS7-XI, One Grande Lake Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452. It's free.

Buying a car online

If you find the car buying process to be tedious and time consuming, you may be going about it all the wrong way. Why not go "digital" and join the millions of Americans who have discovered the ease and convenience of purchasing a new or used car through the Internet, using a service such as Autoweb.com (<http://www.autoweb.com>). For many wired consumers, online car buying is already one of the hottest electronic commerce trends of the '90s.

In fact, according to NetSmart-Research, 61 percent of the 43 million people in the nation with Web access used the Internet to buy a car in 1997-and that number is expected to soar in the coming years. Anyone with access to the Internet can find out about "everything for autos" online. Following are a few simple tips consumers can follow to enjoy a faster, better, and easier car buying experience. Discover the advantages of Internet shopping.

Don't just listen to others talk about the benefits of online commerce-find out for yourself! There's no better way than the Internet to shop for a car because it gives you so much instant information at your fingertips. For most people, a trip to the local dealership is about as appealing as a trip to the dentist. The intimidation tactics of auto salesmen, coupled with a lack of access to detailed information, can make the buying experience a real nightmare for many consumers.

With companies like Autoweb.com, that's all changing. Autoweb.com is completely revolutionizing the way people buy cars. Consumers now have quick and easy access to a world of automotive information online that can help them find the new or used vehicle of their dreams, sell their car online, and obtain access to a myriad of other services. By providing more information and data in one location, they've been able to create a car buying process for consumers that is informative and simple. It certainly is more enticing for the busy individual to evaluate available products and services "virtually," rather than spend frustrating hours pounding the pavement and kicking tires at one or more dealerships to conduct initial legwork.

Become an informed consumer-conduct advance research.

Conduct your research about buying a car first. Make sure to pay a visit to Autoweb.com before ever beginning the car search. In Autoweb.com's new car showroom, you'll find invoice prices, manufacturers' suggested retail prices (MSRP), destination charges, a picture of your desired car, specifications, reviews, and options for every vehicle make and model available in North America. Additional ancillary services such as insurance, financing, emergency roadside, and repair and maintenance support are also conveniently located in one single online destination. Best of all, the service is free of charge to Internet users.

Set a budget and stick to it.

Services such as Autoweb.com will allow you to assess the range of vehicle pricing right up front and better enable you to establish realistic budget parameters at the onset of your search. With immediate and inexpensive access to information via the Internet, you can become an informed and savvy consumer-aware of your options and not easily manipulated. Arm yourself with information so that you will be in control of the buying process. There is nothing worse than having your mind set on a car that you later discover is far beyond your financial means. Worse yet is the possibility of committing to a car loan that you just can't afford-and then being obligated to live with the consequences. Know how much money you can spend on the monthly payment, gas, repairs and insurance before reaching into your pocket. If you don't have Internet access from your home, go to a library.

Most public libraries make Internet access available to the public. If you are not familiar with the Internet, relax and ask a librarian for assistance. They are there to help you and are familiar with the resources you will need to get online.

No more haggling.

Online car buying services like Autoweb.com eliminate confrontational dealer interaction by setting one firm, low price for each vehicle. Using this process, the hassle and irritation of time-consuming negotiations will become a thing of the past. When you're ready to buy, just submit your purchase request, and wait for a response from a participating local dealer.

Sell your old car online.

Some services enable you to sell your own car online. On Autoweb.com, you can check Kelley Blue Book values and post an ad with your car photo. Selling your car has never been so convenient. By the time your ad is posted through the service, there is a good chance a qualified buyer is already "waiting" online.

Car shopping can be fun.

If you do your homework, arm yourself with information in advance by shopping on the Internet, decide which car you're going to buy and how much money you're prepared to spend, there is no reason why car buying can't be a pleasurable experience. After all, if you follow the right steps, you have the opportunity to drive away in the car of your dreams.

1999 Chevy trucks overview

Chevy trucks are on a roll with an incredible array of products, new features and all-new models on the way for 1999.

Chevy enters another year in the truck business with a strong reputation for creating the industry's most dependable, longest-lasting trucks. The result of such powerful market equity is increased sales. Both 1996 and 1997 were record calendar years in terms of truck sales. And just last March, Chevrolet posted its highest truck sales month in its history... in fact, GM sold more trucks in March, 1998 than any manufacturer has ever sold in one month!

Chevy offers a truck for any application...recreational or commercial use. As an increasing number of buyers turn to trucks to fill their daily transportation needs, Chevy Truck will continue to respond with high value products and features. Following is a synopsis of Chevy Truck of pickups, sport utilities and vans for 1999.

Pickups

Chevy expands its pickup offerings for 1999 with the all-new-full-size Silverado Pickup and a new S-10 Xtreme model. C/K pickup is available in limited quantities to round out Chevy's lineup of full-size trucks and Chassis Cabs.

S-10 Pickup. S-10 Pickup is available in a configuration to suit just about any need: Two- or four-wheel drive, Regular or extended cab, short or long box.

S-10 Pickup features segment exclusives, such as standard 4-wheel ABS. Also available are the ZR2 Wide Stance Sport Performance Package (an Off-Road Chassis Package on 4x4 models) and the new S10 Xtreme.

The '99 S-10 Xtreme's unique features include: Ground effects, encompassing the front fascia, wheel-opening flares and rocker panels; body-color grille and bumpers, unique front air dam and integrated foglamps; and sixteen-inch unique aluminum wheels.

The Xtreme will be available in two-wheel drive with either base or uplevel trim, with a four- or six-cylinder engine, manual or automatic transmission, in Regular or Extended

Cab versions, fleetside or sportside.

Silverado Full-Size Pickup. The all-new Chevy Silverado is bigger, faster, stronger and smarter than its predecessor! Chevy Silverado will be available in three trim levels - Base, LS and LT -- similar to other Chevy Truck lines. The Silverado name applies to the entire truck line.

Silverado has an all-new, three section frame that provides a strong platform and contributes to a smooth, quiet ride. This new frame is stiffer, lighter and easier to manufacture than its predecessor.

In addition to a stiffer frame, Silverado's independent front suspension presents several upgrades, including improved on-center feel, enhanced stability, smoother ride and greater durability. The control arms are stronger and lighter than on the previous pickup, contributing to increased payload capacity. Changes to the rear suspension include a wider rear track for better stability.

C/K Full-Size Pickup and Chassis Cab. While the new Chevy Silverado pickup has been introduced, buyers of heavier-duty trucks and Crew Cabs can still purchase Chevy's time-tested C/K Pickup for 1999.

To expand the appeal of the lineup, Chevrolet is introducing an all-new model for 1999--C/K Crew Cab Short Box. In addition to the new model lineup, C/K Pickup trim levels have changed from W/T, Cheyenne and Silverado for '98 to Base and LS -- designations already in use on other Chevy Truck lines.

The 1999 C/K Pickup lineup will include 1500 Series Extended Cab Short Box model with standard third door, a variety of 2500 Series models with 8600 lbs. GVWR, new 2500 and 3500 Series Crew Cab Short Box models and all current 3500 Series Pickups, Crew Cabs and Chassis Cabs, including the C3500 HD. The '99 C/K model has an excellent reputation that has stood the test of time. In recent months C/K Pickup has set sales records for the current generation, despite the fact that the competition is offering newly designed models.

Less under the hood equals more in your pocket!

The first time you look under the hood of an electric vehicle, you'll be struck by what's not there. In fact, what's truly amazing about an electric vehicle is not what goes into it, but what doesn't go into it.

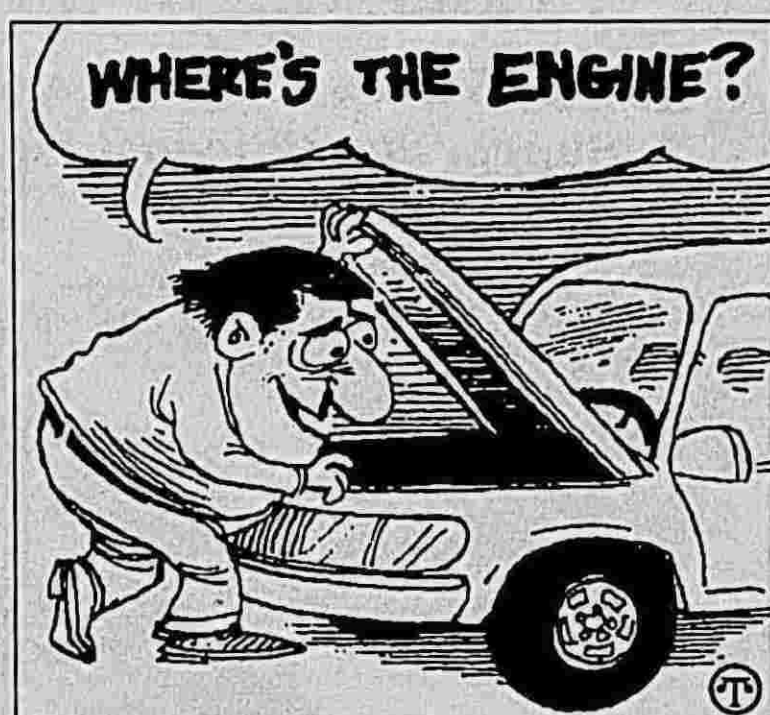

An electric vehicle has three basic parts: a battery which stores and supplies the energy, an electric motor which turns the wheel, and a motor controller which supplies energy to the motor.

There's no engine because an electric vehicle doesn't need an engine. There's no exhaust system and no pollution so there's no need for a tailpipe. What about pistons? Timing belts? Crankshaft? Not there. Not needed.

It takes a lot of metal and rubber to power an internal combustion engine: hoses, plugs, coils, filters, pumps, pistons, valves, rotors and injectors, to name a few. It also takes fluids-transmission, brake, steering and belts to keep the engine greased, firing, and turning to operate the car.

The EV is much simpler. Its fuel, electrical, and drive systems don't need the customary bells and whistles. An electric vehicle has about 30 moving parts to an internal combustion engine's 300. It takes one belt, one pump, a battery pack, a charger, a power cord, a motor, a gear box and tires, and some half dozen accessories to put an EV on the road.

Dave Dilts, Manager of Boston Edison's Electric Transportation Development and coordinator of its EV fleet, commutes 100 miles round trip every day in his own EV. Dilts figures his electric vehicle saves him $300 to $400 right off the top every year without oil changes and winterizing. Long-term savings can be calculated in the thousands on a vehicle without a muffler, rings, or valves.

Perhaps best of all, if you drive an EV, you can drive by the gas station, "fill 'er up" at home, and save money. The Electric Vehicle Association of America estimates "the average monthly fuel cost for a typical EV driver is expected to be less than $15, compared to $50 for a gasoline-powered car." That's a savings of $400 or more every year.

New electric vehicle technologies such as fuel cells and hybrids which take advantage of the EV's inherent simplicity and efficiency will soon be on the market.

Lake County's green thumb

The Gardeners of Central Lake County are celebrating their 50th anniversary in style

By BRENDAN O'NEILL
Sports Editor

Sure, we've endured a March which has already brought us nearly a foot of snow. And it came just after a February in which we were taunted by high temperatures and sunny skies. But fear not, spring will come, and for many people in Lake County, that means more activity in the garden.

Gardening is a very popular hobby in Lake County, especially among the area's senior citizens, and some look for a common place to share ideas and talk about different aspects of gardening and stimulate interest in those with just a minor involvement in gardening and horticulture.

The place for area gardeners to do that is the Gardeners of Lake County, a gardening club based in the Libertyville area which has been around for 50 years.

The club officially began on March 2, 1949 with 35 charter members, headed by Gene Pfister, president of the Men's Garden Clubs of America from 1945-46. The name of the club back then was the Libertyville-Mundelein Men's Garden Club, which was changed to its current moniker about 10 years ago.

Now it is one of the only co-ed garden clubs in Northern Illinois, and has members from all over Lake County, not just the Libertyville, Mundelein, Vernon Hills area.

Enrollment soared from 35 in 1949 to 129 in 1953, then dipped in the 1960s before reaching its peak in 1976 of 148. The current membership numbers about 50, but the club is always looking to expand.

From the beginning, the purpose of the club was to promote civic interest and pride in private gardens, community parks and industrial sites, as well as to develop interest and increase knowledge among gardeners.

Today, three members of the club are actively working toward awareness of the club to try to generate interest in some of the bigger projects which are offered.

"Our biggest project is probably the (Lynn Arthur) Rose Garden in Cook Memorial Park (in Libertyville)," said Norman Enevold, club president. "Either that or the community gardens."

Douglass Getchell, corresponding secretary for the club, and Susan Plasz, publicity officer, both noted the importance of the rose garden to the visibility and perception of the club, but added that project of that scope have become rare in recent years.

"It's difficult to such big projects because they require two things which are difficult to get: labor and money," said Getchell. "We don't have the where-with-all to conduct such projects on a regular basis."

"We are a volunteer, not-for-profit organization, and some people are reluctant because they know that if they join, we'll put them to work and they don't want that," said Enevold.

"It takes a fair amount of labor to build and maintain the community gardens," said Plasz.

The community garden is located in Libertyville and offers gardeners an opportunity and a place to grow and maintain plants in a greenhouse during winter months. Although the community gardens are operated by the club, the gardens are available to anyone, not just club members.

But the rose garden at Cook Park in Libertyville is the jewel in the club's crown, and by no coincidence it is the center of attention for the 50th anniversary celebrations which began March 8th and will continue for much of the spring.

"We're going to have a cake and talk about the history of the club and go out to the rose garden," said Plasz, prior to the festivities. "It is the biggest thing we do and the thing we are known for. Part of the program will be a 'How to Grow Roses' class which will begin tonight and continue through the spring and summer on Wednesday nights."

The rose garden, established in 1952, has been the pride of the club for years, and people are always asking club members how to grow roses. With that impetus, the club is now offering the new classes to answer any and all questions from the soil treatment to pruning.

"There's an awful lot published about it (growing roses), but a lot of the time it doesn't necessarily pertain to your backyard," said Enevold.

Some of the upcoming topics at the classes will include how to trim and prune roses, developing soil/preparing the bed, fertilizers, insecticide spraying and winterizing.

"We try to provide a community service, and that attracts people to our (rose) garden," added Enevold.

The club will offer a number of

Bowen Park gives opera for all

Bowen Park Opera will present their second opera for the season, Giacomo Puccini's La Bohème, stage direction by Michael Kotze and music direction by Lynn Kompass. This passionate opera will be performed in English on March 12, 13, 19, 20, 26 and 27 at 8 p.m., and March 24 at 2 p.m. in Goodfellow Hall at the Jack Benny Center for the Arts, 39 Jack Benny Dr., Bowen Park, Waukegan.

The libretto, written by Giuseppe Giacosa and Luigi Illica is set in Paris around 1830. A chance meeting over an extinguished candle and a lost key, love which strikes like a thunderbolt, great passion and great torment are set in the surroundings of the life of the Bohemians. Join the Bowen Park Opera Company as this brilliant opera, La Bohème is brought to the stage.

Seating is limited so reservations are recommended. Tickets are $18 for adults and $15 for seniors, full time students and military. To make a reservation or for more information call the Jack Benny Center for the Arts at 360-4741. Visa and MasterCard accepted.

activities in the coming months including various fund-raisers, flower and garden shows, upgrade your home competitions and the very popular garden walk, which allows people to walk through and view personal gardens in the area at people's homes.

The future plans of the club are geared toward getting the word out about all it has to offer, increase membership and expand/improve on the existing activities.

"We would like to start a youth gardeners program, but again, that takes a lot of labor and money," said Getchell.

"It's not easy to develop strategies and increase membership," added Enevold. "The things we are focused on are the rose garden, the community gardens, the garden walk and publicity. We want to get more people involved."

Hopefully these blustery days of March are behind us, at least for this year, and the greenery of Lake County will finally have a chance to bloom and blossom without the fear of another unexpected snow storm.

When that happens, the Gardeners of Central Lake County will be out in force, maintaining and improving their existing gardens, and planting new ones. All in the hope of beatifying their respective communities, and helping others to understand some of the more attractive members of the plant world.

Paging Dr. Georgie, porgie, puddin' and pie

For a couple of years now, I've been meaning to get around to watching "ER." I figured I must be missing something, after hearing so many glowing reviews of the show from female friends and acquaintances.

Like the following typical conversation:

FRIEND: "Hey, Donna, did you see ER last night?"

ME: "No. Actually, I've never seen it."

FRIEND: "Where have you been, girl? I can't believe you don't watch it. It is, without a doubt, the finest show on television."

ME: "Really? What's so good about it?"

FRIEND: "Wake up! It has George Clooney, that's what's so good about it! The man is so handsome, he makes me wish I was a child again."

ME: "A CHILD? Why?"

FRIEND: "Because he plays a pediatric specialist, dummy. I want him to check my tonsils!"

Still, until recently, I had better things to do than waste my time watching some hunk on "ER." That is, until Michael Jordan retired. Then I was faced with a choice - watch Toni Kukoc, or check out George Clooney.

I picked George.

Well, just my luck, I finally turn on "ER" and it turns out to be George Clooney's last episode. Too bad, because it took me only a few minutes to understand why everyone was watching George Clooney and "ER."

LIFE'S A BEAR

Donna Abear

They were studying anatomy. George Clooney's, that is.

So, there I was, one episode and 1/2 George Clooney's anatomy later, and the guy skips on me!

I suppose that's what I get for procrastinating. But truthfully, I think the real reason I waited so long to join the legion of female fans eager to jump on George Clooney's examining table was because of his name: George.

Nothing personal against any of you fellas out there, but the sound of the name "George" just isn't music to my ears, unless you count the song, "George, George, George of the jungle..." You see, as a child, I had a bad "George" experience. I have never admitted this publicly before, not even to Oprah, but when I was in fourth and fifth grade, I was the victim of a "George" stalking.

Several times a week, a gawky, nondescript boy named George and his best friend John would engage in a "Donna drive by". This is how it would go: John would ride up first on his bike, and yell, "Georgie and Donna sittin' in a tree, K-I-S-S-I-N-G..", or something equally embarrassing. He would be closely followed by George, who would give me a big, dumb smile and occasionally throw something at me, such as a paper airplane love note.

Despite my protests and attempts to gently persuade George that I did not return his affections ("Listen, Georgie, Porgie, puddin' and pie - if you ever try to kiss me, I'll punch you in the eye!"), this continued for at least two years. It was always the same - John did all the talking while George remained mute, flashing me the same, goofy grin.

It was awful. For two years, I felt like I was stuck in an endless rerun of the movie, "Of Mice and Men."

So you can see why, to this day, when I hear the name "George," the first person that comes to mind is my fourth grade "stalker". Strangely enough, though I'll never forget that experience, I cannot for the life of me remember that boy's last name.

Of course, with my luck, it was probably "Clooney".

Drake Theatre to present 'The Threepenny Opera'

Macheath (Ben Seibert) and Jenny Diver (Kara Szosted) tell the story of their love affair in "The Pimp's Tango."

The Drake Theatre at Barat College proudly presents Bertolt Brecht's masterpiece, The Threepenny Opera, with music by Kurt Weill. The play is directed by Karla Koskinen. Starring in principal roles are Ben Seibert as Macheath, Lewis Lain as Peachum, Jill Seibert as Polly, Scott Harris as Brown, and Melody Hinckley as Lucy.

The Threepenny Opera gives us an introduction to the life of London's criminal districts, Soho and Whitechapel, which are still the refuge of the poorest and least easily understood strata of English society, just as they were any years ago. Koskinen's version grew out of a faulty/student semester-long exploration of Brecht. Threepenny will be set in the 1980's when new wave and punk were gaining popularity under the conservative leadership of Margaret Thatcher. The evening will explore the edgy, sometimes brutal environment of the lower class in London. Like all of Brecht's plays, it is something of a montage, embracing elements from different sources and periods.

The production runs two weekends, opening Friday, March 12 and closing Sunday, March 21. Performance times are 8 pm on Fridays and Saturdays and 3 pm on Sundays. Tickets are $9 general admission and $7 for students and senior citizens. All seats are reserved. To order tickets, or for more information, call the Drake Theatre Box Office at (847) 604-6344.

Center at (414) 657-6005 during regular business hours to reserve a space. Space is limited so early registration is encouraged. Pre-payment is necessary to guarantee your reservation. Deadline for reservations is Monday, March 15.

Two-person exhibit at CLC features sculptures

Chicago artists featured through April 4

"Time and History," a two-person exhibition featuring the works of Chicago artists Stephen Luecking and Margaret Lanterman, is currently on display at the College of Lake County's Community Gallery of Art on the Grayslake Campus. The exhibit will continue through April 4.

A full professor at DePaul University, Luecking's work consists of small three-dimensional models set in stone, wood and metal, and large-scale outdoor sculptures. Scientific and mechanical in nature, his work often makes references to laws of physics, astronomy and universal governing systems. His large sculptures incorporate the earth, sun and stars into his designs. His most recent work is an outdoor public sculpture titled "Sun Pivot," which is located at CLC's main entrance, made of limestone and bronze, the sculpture is comprised of two monolithic stones standing side-by-side and two outer stones some distance away. It serves as a seasonal indicator that marks the summer solstice and the vernal equinox.

Lanterman's sculptures take on a humanistic approach, evoking such strong emotions as tenderness, anxiety and pain. Inspired by her interest in ethnology and pre-historic cultures, her work chronicles fragments of human existence and expression in cast plaster and bronze. Her casts are composed of human anatomy—mostly a hand or hands resting on a segment of an arm, a knee, an ankle or a book. Lanterman is an instructor at DePaul University's School for New Learning.

The gallery hours are 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

For information, call Steve Jones, curator and exhibit coordinator, at 543-2240.

HOROSCOPE

Aries — March 21/April 20

Don't let your desire to control a family matter alienate loved ones. They want to help resolve the situation too, and their suggestions are worthwhile. A close friend invites you to a social outing late in the week. Say yes, because it's sure to be a good time. Leo plays a key role.

Taurus — April 21/May 21

Your stubbornness gets you into trouble with a co-worker. Take the time to listen to what he or she is saying. If you do, you'll realize that you both have the same goal. A family member asks for your advice about a financial problem. Offer your opinion, but don't pretend to be an expert on the matter.

Gemini — May 22/June 21

Patience is what you need early in the week, Gemini. An important business decision is out of your hands; all you can do is wait. If you push people for an answer, you just might hear some bad news. Be patient! The person whom you've been seeing wants to get serious. Say yes; you know that this is what you want.

Cancer — June 22/July 22

Don't let a minor personal problem throw you off this week. It's nothing serious, and it will resolve itself by the week's end. Try to stay calm. An acquaintance gets into trouble and calls you for help. Don't get too involved in the situation, or you'll be in over your head.

Leo — July 23/August 23

Don't be shy when you meet an intriguing person this week, Leo. Just be your normal self, and you're sure to make a good impression. He or she will appreciate your outgoing nature. A loved one offers you some constructive criticism. Don't get angry; just listen to what is being said.

Virgo — Aug 24/Sept 22

A meeting early in the week turns out to be very important for you financially — don't be late for it. If you are, you could miss a lucrative opportunity. A friend sticks his or her nose into your personal affairs. Don't let him or her force you to do anything that you don't want to do.

Libra — Sept 23/Oct 23

Don't pick a fight with a business associate during the middle of the week. Even though this person may be annoying, he or she has the upper hand in this situation. Just stay calm. That special someone has an important question for you. Think about what you really want before answering.

Scorpio — Oct 24/Nov 22

Don't let an acquaintance change your mind about an important business matter. Stand firm. You've looked at all of the pros and cons and know that you're making the right decision. A loved one needs a shoulder to cry on. Be there for him or her. Capricorn plays a key role.

Sagittarius — Nov 23/Dec 21

A business associate tries to pull a fast one this week. Pay attention to what is going on around you, and try to stop him or her. The higher-ups will be impressed with your actions. An old friend contacts you out of the blue. Talk with him or her; you're sure to learn some interesting information.

Capricorn — Dec 22/Jan 20

Don't be shy when someone close to you praises your work. You deserve the recognition and should be proud of yourself. A close friend needs help with a personal matter. Do what you can, because you know that he or she would be there for you if the situation were reversed. Pisces plays an important role late in the week.

Aquarius — Jan 21/Feb 18

Be realistic when it comes to your "to do" list this week, Aquarius. You can't do everything on your own; you're going to need some help. Don't be afraid to ask for assistance. Others know how hectic your workload is right now. A family friend turns to you for advice. While you're surprised at this, be honest with him or her.

Pisces — Feb 19/March 20

Don't be insensitive to an acquaintance who is going through a difficult time right now. Try to be understanding, and help him or her to cope with the situation. Your efforts will be appreciated. Virgo plays a key role.

'Office Space' details insanity in the workplace

The daily grind of going to and from work, dealing with the commute, talking with fellow employees, listening to bosses can start to grind on the nerves of certain employees. And at some point, someone just can't take it anymore. This is the premise of "Office Space," the new movie from "Beavis and Butthead" creator Mike Judge.

The concept for the movie came from a short cartoon which appeared on "Saturday Night Live" called "Milton." Judge created the short for SNL and based the entire concept around a character, Milton, who was being squeezed out of the company, literally, as they moved him into the storage basement.

That cartoon exaggerated some of the bewildering corporate structure and the inane trivial things which frustrate workers every day.

"Milton" the cartoon evolved into "Office Space" the live-action movie, and with it evolved an entire world of malfunctioning copiers and fax machines, double-talking bosses, strange unnecessary paperwork and ridiculous management.

This all seems to be too much for Peter Gibbons (Ron Livingston), Jennifer Aniston plays opposite Ron Livingston in "Office Space," a new off-beat comedy from Mike Judge, creator of "Beavis and Butthead" on MTV and "King of the Hill" on Fox.

who works at the fictitious INITECH, and while at a hypnotist decides he is not going to live or work by someone else's rules.

Joined by his co-workers Samir (Ajay Naidu) and Michael Bolton (no, not that Michael Bolton) played by David Herman, Peter starts to do things his way, defying any attempt of the management to exert power over him.

Meanwhile, the title character of the original cartoon, Milton (Stephen Root), is treated just like he was in the cartoon, as he is moved into the storage basement and is eventually not receiving a paycheck. And Gary Cole does an excellent job as Peter's boss, as he plays the mild-mannered odd-ball to a tee.

The plot picks up considerably after Peter is hypnotized, as he goes to work in shorts and sandals, and sometimes doesn't show up at all. Then, Peter Samir and Michael hatch a scheme to steal a fraction of a cent from each transaction the company makes, eventually depositing a huge amount of money into their own account as time goes on.

All of the actors involved, including Jennifer Aniston as Peter's girlfriend, do a good job in this off-beat comedy.

And Judge shows his fans that after MTV's "Beavis and Butthead" and Fox's "King of the Hill," both animated television series, he can do real-life film just as well as the animated stuff.

Based on the off-beat humor, the wacky characters, good acting and decent plotline, I give "Office Space" three out of five popcorn boxes.

More on planting and growing roses

Last week we discussed the various types of roses and the varieties you may like to plant in your garden. You can put several roses together to make a rose bed, plant a group of the same kind or rose in a line to create a hedge, or work your roses into a mixed bed or border with other flowers.

In all three of these scenarios, you will discover that roses do not look beautiful all of the time. Solve this problem by using companion plants that look great when the roses are not blooming. Usually roses do not look good in the winter, early spring and midsummer.

As far as when and where to buy the roses you will plant, a good selection will be available in garden supply stores soon. Plants are sold bare-root with their roots tightly wrapped in plastic. Such roses look dead, but they are merely sleeping, in other words dormant.

If you want your roses to perform really well, spend a few extra dollars and buy Grade One plants. They have more stems and roots than cheaper Grade Two plants. Most roses are really two plants in one. The first plant is the hardy, vigorous root, and the second plant is the fancy rose grafted onto that root. The graft union should look like a solid bulge just above the roots, and the plant should have at least three main canes reaching for the sky.

You will notice many roses are labeled AARS, which stands for All-American Rose Selections. Rose varieties that win the AARS designation are generally among the best. Also, the greatest and best roses are patented. After a while you will recognize some well known breeders such as Jackson and Perkins.

Roses like a neutral soil pH of 6.5 to 7.0 but other than that, they are not picky about the soil in which they are planted.

To plant a bare-rooted rose in good, rich topsoil, dig a hole wide

GARDEN JOURNAL

enough to extend the roots without bending them. If the roots are damaged, trim them as needed. Spread the roots over a low cone of soil in the center of the planting hole. Backfill with the soil removed from the hole, firming the soil in place with your hands. I always add some good compost or peat moss in the hole. Finally, water thoroughly to settle soil and eliminate air pockets.

To plant a rose in tight clay or porous sand, dig a roomy planting hole about 14 inches square put the excavated soil in a wheelbarrow, and mix the soil with one-fourth part peat moss, one-fourth part bagged compost or aged manure, and a couple of handfuls of bone meal. Partially refill the hole, spread out the roots of your rose, add some more soil and water well. Then finish dumping in your enriched soil.

In our climate where winter temps are apt to get rather cold, we need to set the bud union two or more inches below the soil surface. If you wait to buy your roses at a nursery or garden center during the growing season, the plants will be growing in containers. When trans-planting a potted rose to the garden, dig a hole that is twice the width and about the same depth as the container. Use a utility knife to cut the pot away so that the roots are disturbed as little as possible.

Later in the season, I'll refresh your memories on spraying, pruning and the fertilizing of your roses to keep them looking their best.

Until next time, peace.

Rosacea riddle threatens 76 million baby boomers

March has been designated Rosacea Awareness Month by the National Rosacea Society to increase public understanding of this little-known but life-disruptive facial disorder now estimated to affect more than 13 million Americans. At the same time, the society has instituted a research grants program to encourage greater scientific knowledge of the potential causes and other key aspects of this conspicuous and embarrassing condition that can lead to permanent facial and psychological damage if left untreated.

Rosacea is becoming increasingly widespread as the 76 million baby boomers -- one in three Americans -- enter the most dangerous years for developing this chronic and progressive disorder. Yet a recent national Gallup survey found that 78 percent of the public has no knowledge of this condition, including how to recognize it and what to do about it.

"Because the early symptoms often masquerade as a sunburn, many rosacea sufferers fail to realize they have a condition that can be treated, or they assume it's just like teenage acne and will eventually go away by itself," said Dr. Larry Millikan, chairman of Dermatology, Tulane University School of Medicine. Unfortunately, without medical help rosacea tends to become increasingly more severe -- often leading to a read and swollen nose and, in rare cases, even loss of vision.

"It is essential for any adult with excessive facial redness or acne-like symptoms to see a dermatologist for differential diagnosis and appropriate treatment to prevent rosacea's progression to more serious stages," Dr. Millikan said. "Public awareness today is especially important because of the growing prevalence of this condition."

Among the most famous rosacea sufferers is President Bill Clinton, whose doctors disclosed that he has this condition in "The New York Times." Others reported to have suffered from rosacea include comedian W.C. Fields, Princess Diana, financier J.P. Morgan and the Dutch painter Rembrandt.

During March and year round, people who suspect they may suffer from rosacea can call the National Rosacea Society's toll-free hotline at 1-888-NO-BLUSH for free educational materials and the names of dermatologists in their areas who treat this often embarrassing disorder.

Rosacea usually first strikes between the ages of 30 and 60 as a redness on the cheeks, nose, chin or forehead that comes and goes. As the disease progresses, the redness becomes ruddier and more permanent, and tiny dilated blood vessels may become visible. Left untreated, acne-like bumps and pimples often develop and, in advanced cases, the nose may become bumpy, red and enlarged from excess tissue -- the condition that gave the late comedian W.C. Fields his trademark bulbous nose. In some individuals, rosacea also causes the eyes to become gritty and red as it increases in severity.

Although rosacea is often called "adult acne," the Gallup survey found that 73 percent of the respondents did not know this term can refer either to acne vulgarism, which primarily occurs during adolescence but also may appear in adults, or to rosacea, which can be far more serious and requires different therapy.

Perhaps even more devastating than its physical effects, rosacea often inflicts significant emotional and social damage on the lives of its victims. In a National Rosacea Society survey of 1,235 rosacea sufferers, nearly 70 percent said rosacea lowered their self-esteem and self-confidence, and many said they avoided face-to-face contact because of their facial appearance.

Adding to the embarrassment is a common myth that rosacea sufferers, who often have a red face and nose, are alcoholics. In fact, the symptoms can be just as severe in a teetotaler.

Another false assumption is that a person's skin problem is due to poor hygiene, and many sufferers do not realize that their condition can be effectively controlled with medical therapy and lifestyle modification to avoid factors that aggravate their individual cases.

While the cause of rosacea is unknown, an astonishing array of lifestyle and environmental factors often triggers flare-ups in various rosacea sufferers. These may include sun exposure, emotional stress, hot or cold weather, alcohol, spicy food, exercise, wind, hot baths, hot beverages, humidity, certain drugs and skin-care products, underlying medical conditions and many others.

Although rosacea can affect all segments of the population, those believed most at risk are individuals with fair skin who tend to flush or blush easily. The disease is more frequently diagnosed in women, but more severe symptoms tend to occur in men -- perhaps because they often delay seeking medical help until the disorder reaches advanced stages. There is also evidence that rosacea tends to run in families, especially those of Irish, English, Scottish and northern or eastern European heritage.

The National Rosacea Society is a nonprofit educational organization engaged in providing information on rosacea to physicians, patients and the public, and in supporting rosacea research. Information on rosacea is available by writing the National Rosacea Society, 800 S. Northwest Highway, Suite 200, Barrington, 60010 or via e-mail at rosaceas@aol.com. Information and materials are also available on the society's Web site at www.rosacea.org.

Modern celebrities affected by rosacea: W.C. Fields' trademark bulbous nose was the result of the most severe state of rosacea, call rhinophyma. Princess Diana was noted to experience the facial redness and flare-ups associated with rosacea, according to the book, 'Royal Fashion and Beauty Secrets', by Ann Chubb. Medical statements from President Bill Clinton's doctors reported in 'The New York Times' revealed that he suffers from rosacea.

Left: Rosacea usually starts as a redness on the cheeks or nose, and sometimes the chin or forehead. Center: As rosacea progresses, bumps (papules) and pimples (pustules) often develop, and dilated blood vessels may become visible on the surface of the skin (telangiectasia). Right: Especially in men, the nose may become red and swollen, eventually developing a bulbous appearance from excess tissue (rhinophyma)

Midwestern Regional Medical Center recognized for support of youth activities

On Feb. 26, Midwestern Regional Medical Center was recognized for its support of youth activities by the Beach Park Ravens, a local baseball team.

For the past five years, MRMC has sponsored this team of young men who have played games locally and at the state and national levels. presenting the hospital with the trophy from the championship.

The Ravens are coached by David Pratt, Duane Frykman and Tom Rush. Under their leadership and guidance the team has learned to balance their love of baseball with education.

'Mulder and Scully fever' keeps a teen awake at night

Hi Dr. Singer,

My daughter is 12-years-old and is an avid "X Files" watcher. She never misses a show. Lately, she seems to be getting more and more frightened of the show but when I ask her not to watch it, she refuses and gets upset.

She fights about getting into bed after the show is over. She claims to be scared, but once in bed, she falls asleep almost immediately. Since it airs on Sunday nights, her Monday school suffers for all the fighting. Any suggestion? J.G.

Dear J.G.

As an avid "X Files" fan myself, I can understand why she gets scared of the show. There are many of those shows that are creepy. I think that some of the reason that it might get to her is because it often skirts very close to the border of reality. You find yourself asking whether or not that might be possible. When you're 35, you can pretty easily dismiss it as a writer's active imagination. When you're 12, I'm not sure that is so easy to do.

She might not be happy with me for my suggestions, but here they are. If the show continues to effect her sleep and her energy for Monday school, it really shouldn't even be up for discussion. School and concentration has to be the priority. Now, you said that it really isn't effecting her sleep, because she falls asleep immediately once in bed. It seems to be more of the fight and energy to actually get her in bed that is the problem. If this is accurate, you can offer her a choice.

The choice would be that she is only allowed to watch the show if she agrees to get ready for bed and get in bed without a fight. Then she would have to follow through on that promise each and every Sunday to maintain the privilege. The flip side of this, of course, would be that if she fought once about getting in bed, after watching the show, you have the right to pull her "X Files" watching privilege.

Of course, if you don't want her watching it anyway, you always have the option of making this a permanent rule. If it is a rule, it functions like any other rule and should not be something that can be shouted down. You will have to decide which one feels more right for you. If you do this, don't expect to be popular though!

The other option I can think of is this: Have her tape the show and watch it early after school on Monday. This way, she is watching it when it is light out (takes out some of the chill factor.) Also, she is watching it early enough that the thoughts won't be as fresh when she gets in bed. The problem you might face with this is that she might have a group of friends who all discuss the show and how creepy it was, on Monday. She would probably be very displeased if she couldn't partake of that type of group activity.

Try offering her the choice to take control of her own behavior and show responsibility and in exchange, she earns the right to watch the show. If that doesn't work within 2 times, you might have to choose the other way.

Susan Komen Foundation Awards grant to local organization

The YWCA of Lake and McHenry County has been awarded a grant for $28,684.88 for the ENCOREplus Breast Cancer Education Program. Funding from the Susan Komen Foundation will sustain and increase outreach to Lake County medically underserved women. It is the programs first year of funding by the Susan Komen Foundation.

The YWCA's ENCOREplus program refers low income Lake County women to low/no cost mammograms. Since July of 1995, the YWCA has educated over 13,000 women about the importance of early detection of breast cancer and provided access to free and low cost mammograms for 390 Lake County women.

Breast cancer is a threat to every woman, however, through early detection, many lives will be saved. According to the National Cancer Institute, women of color have a higher incidence of death due to late diagnosis. The YWCA ENCOREplus program, in cooperation with local medical providers such as: Midwestern Regional Medical Center; Provena St. Therese Medical Center; Victory Memorial Hospital; HealthReach Clinic; and the Lake County Health Department and with the support of organizations like the Susan Komen Foundation will continue to educate women of all races concerning the risk of breast and cervical cancer and the importance of early detection in Lake County.

A WORD ABOUT BABY TEETH

Why should I have my child's baby teeth filled? Aren't they going to fall out anyway?

Yes, your child's baby or primary teeth will be replaced with permanent teeth, but the molars will not erupt until between the ages of 10 and 12 years. These molars are crucial to your child not only for chewing but to maintain space for the permanent teeth to erupt.

Unfortunately, sometimes a child's primary molar cannot be saved and must be extracted prematurely due to severe decay. In this case, the space left by the extracted tooth must be kept open with an appliance called a space maintainer. This appliance will hold the space open for the permanent tooth until it erupts.

If a primary tooth is decayed and remains in the child's mouth, the decay may worsen and there is an added risk of infection or abscess. This would require antibiotic therapy and would likely be followed by extracting the affected tooth.

In other words, having your child's primary teeth filled when cavities are first detected by her dentist will save money and time, as well as her smile.

At-large election stirs more debate

County board member accuses state officials of 'meddling' in county board election process

By JOHN ROSZKOWSKI
City Editor

Larry Leafblad says he's tired of state politicians meddling in county politics.

A Lake County board member from Grayslake, Leafblad is angered by a state legislative proposal that would change the method of electing the county board chairman to an at-large election.

However, if that happens, Leafblad said he would be a candidate for the chairmanship. "If it does, I'm ready," said Leafblad, who was reached by telephone last Friday.

The proposal, sponsored by State Sen. Terry Link, D-Vernon Hills, and co-sponsored by state senators Adeline Geo-Karis, R-Zion, and William Peterson, R-Prarie View, remains in a senate committee and has not yet been called for a vote.

"I doubt it will happen," Leafblad said of the proposed legislation.

Link's proposal provides that all counties with populations over 500,000 would have "at large" elections for county board chairman. Lake County is the only county in Illinois of that size that doesn't elect its board chairman at large.

Link and Geo-Karis have called the bill a good government effort that would allow the voters to decide who would serve as county board chairman. Currently, the Lake County Board chairman is selected by a ma-

"They can't change any of that but they can change how we elect a chairman. Talk about meddling," said Leafblad.

Because of his concern over the cost for an average citizen to run a countywide campaign for chairman, Leafblad said he would be a candidate if an at large election were held. However, even if Link's bill succeeds, at large elections would not be held until the 2002 election cycle.

In addition to Leafblad, another potential candidate is Fred Foreman, former U.S.

Attorney and Lake County State's Attorney, who indicated he might be interested in vying for chairman if an at large election were held. Both Leafblad and Foreman are Republicans. There would likely be a Democratic challenger if an at-large election were held.

Foreman said Friday that it's a little hard to speculate what's going to happen at this point, noting that even if a change in the law occurs, an at-large election is still almost four years away.

"I can't get that serious about running for an office that doesn't exist. We'll wait to see if the law passes," he said.

While not ruling out that he may be interested in running in an at large election, he said he never lobbied Link to introduce the bill as some majority of the 24-member board.

Leafblad believes there are other motives behind the legislation than good government, suggesting it's an effort to try to control the board's new majority. "It's the last gasp of the 'good old boys.' They can't win fair and square so they say let's go down to Springfield and try to change the rules," he said.

He said the new Lake County Board is working well together and he can't understand why state legislators are trying to interfere.

"There's more harmony on this county board than in its history and they don't like it because as long as this county board acts as a team they can't control it," said Leafblad.

Leafblad said the state has done little to support the county board's legislative efforts, including proposals on school impact fees, regulations on cellular towers and more state gas tax dollars for Lake County.

Schroeder, Tucker named to leadership roles at Lakeland

Two Lake County residents have been named to newly created leadership positions at Lakeland Newspapers.

They are Neal Tucker of Wadsworth, new operations manager, and Robert J. Schroeder of Libertyville, new general sales manager.

The promotions were announced by William H. Schroeder, publisher of the locally owned and operated company that publishes 11 community news weeklies; the Market Journal, a county-wide shopper newspaper, and the Great Lakes Bulletin, official newspaper for Great Lakes Naval Training Center.

Lakeland also has a specialty publications division that produces community profile booklets in cooperation with chambers of commerce and the Lake County Auto Market-place.

"Creation of the new leadership positions sets the stage for a new era of growth and development for Lakeland," stated Publisher Schroeder, a life-long resident of Lake County. He and his father founded the newspaper company in 1956. The Lakeland group includes some of Lake County's oldest continuously published newspapers, dating back to 1888.

Tucker, a native of southwest Iowa, graduated from William Penn College in Oskaloosa, Iowa with a degree in English/Communications Arts and a minor in business management. He has held various positions in the newspaper industry during the past 13 years.

He spent three years in the sales force for two corporate newspapers in southwest Iowa before relocating to the Chicago area in 1990 when he accepted a position with Reporter-Progress Newspapers in Downers Grove.

He has been with Lakeland Publishers for the past five years and has worked in a myriad of positions including: display advertising sales, reporter, regional editor, composition manager, computer network director and for the past year has served as the newspaper's executive editor.

Grinnell recovering in rehab after strokes

By JOHN ROSZKOWSKI
City Editor

Former Lake County Sheriff Clinton Grinnell is recovering in a rehabilitation center in Elk Grove after suffering two strokes Feb. 28.

Earlier this week, the 67-year-old Grinnell was transferred from Condell Medical Center in Libertyville to Alexian Brothers Medical Center, where he will spend the next few weeks in rehab recovering.

Lake County Sheriff Gary Del Re said he visited Grinnell last Friday while he was in the hospital in Libertyville.

Del Re said he spent about 40 minutes with Grinnell and he was "very much alert" and lucid and appeared to be in good spirits.

"How long the rehabilitation will be I don't know, but certainly our thoughts and prayers are with former Sheriff Grinnell and hope he makes a full recovery," said Del Re.

Because of the stroke, Grinnell has very little use of his right arm and leg, according to Del Re.

"He suffered a stroke. There's some paralysis. We're certainly hoping that with physical therapy he'll return to full range of motion," said Del Re.

Grinnell served as Lake County sheriff for eight years, before retiring in 1996 due to health reasons.

Del Re, who was undersheriff at the time, was appointed the sheriff's post.

Del Re said he and Grinnell had known each other before they started working for the sheriff's department. He said Grinnell spent more than 40 years in law enforcement, including a stint as the Libertyville police chief.

"He's been a very dear friend of mine," said Del Re.

Composting will soon be option for county residents

By JOHN ROSZKOWSKI
City Editor

If you're tired of clogging up your garbage disposal with food scraps, or filling up your trash can with coffee grounds, another option may soon be available to you.

Starting sometime this spring, the Solid Waste Agency of Lake County (SWALCO) will offer bins for sale which residents can use for composting household organic wastes.

Andy Quigley, executive director of SWALCO, said the agency is in the process of seeking bids to determine the cost of purchasing the bins.

Quigley said each of the bins costs about $35 and the agency would subsidize a portion of the amount. He said residents would be able to acquire the bins for probably about $20 or $30, although the exact price has not yet been determined.

The bins are approximately four feet tall and 36 inches wide and will include instructions on how to use the bins.

Quigley said residents could use them to dispose of most types of food items such as lettuce, vegetable matter, egg shells and coffee grounds. This matter will eventually decompose and can be used by the residents as compost material to put on lawns and gardens, he said.

"We think this will help reduce the amount of organic waste generated by households and will give people materials for use in their gardens or lawn management," he said.

Quigley said a recent waste survey at the landfill found that nearly 19 percent of the waste being disposed of at the landfill is food waste. "We found a large amount of waste going into the landfill is food scraps," he said.

Putting food scraps down the garbage disposal is not a good idea either because these materials can potentially contaminate the groundwater supply, according to Quigley.

"These materials just don't go away," he said.

Quigley said SWALCO estimates between 1,000 to 2,000 residents of Lake County will participate in the program. The Village of North Barrington has established a similar composting program and about 400 people are participating, he said.

"The program they have in North Barrington has been very well received," he said.

In April, the agency will announce four or five sites throughout the county where residents can purchase the bins, Quigley said.

Three county board members named to national committees

Three Lake County Board members have been appointed to National Association of Counties (NACo) steering committees. NACo's 13 steering committees form the policy-making arm of the association. Each committee is comprised of about 50 county officials who meet several times during the year to examine issues critical to local government. Board Member Angelo Kyle (Democrat, District 12) has been named a member of the Community and Economic Development Steering Committee. The NACo steering committee focuses on general community development and redevelopment; residential, commercial and industrial development; housing programs; building and housing codes; subdivision regulation; and public works and economic development. Kyle is the chairman of Lake County's community and Economic Development Committee.

County Board Member Robert Grever (Republican, District 19) has been named a member of the Transportation and Telecommunications Steering Committee. That committee focuses on comprehensive transportation planning, highway finance and safety, public transit development and finance, airport development, railroads, waterways and the research and development of new modes of transportation.

County Board Member Dr. John Schullen (Republican, District 13) has been named a member of the Health Steering Committee, which focuses on health care delivery and financing including indigent care; health care for the uninsured; Medicaid; Medicare; long-term care; public health programs; mental health; substance abuse; mental retardation; and developmental disabilities. Schullen is vice chairman of the county's Health and Human Services Committee.

The NACo steering committees' recommendations on legislative policies and goals are presented to NACo's membership during the association's annual conference. If approved, the recommendations become part of the American County Platform, which is the basis of NACo's efforts in representing counties before Congress and the White House.

In-person absentee voting has begun

"In-person absentee voting for the Consolidated Election to be held April 13 began March 4, in the County Clerk's office Room 101, 18 N. County St., Waukegan," announced Lake County Clerk Willard Helander. Voting will be offered during regular office hours of 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Thursday, and 8:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. on Friday. In-person absentee voting will also be offered on Saturday, April 10, from 9 a.m. to noon. The last day to vote in-person absentee is Monday, April 12.

In Illinois, absentee voting is restricted to the following: absent from Lake County on election day; physically incapacitated; student temporarily residing outside Lake County; observance of a religious holiday; incarceration pending trial date; serving jury duty; employed in the Office of the Lake County Clerk/State's Attorney/ or serving as an election judge and election day duties will prevent being present at the polling place.

A registered voter may also vote an absentee ballot by mail. The voter should request an Application for Absentee Ballot by calling the Lake County Clerk's office at 360-5912. Once the signed application is returned, our office will mail the voter their ballot within 48 hours.

"The office also offers a number of absentee programs which accommodate voters who are temporarily or permanently unable to be at the polls on election day. These include the Disabled Voter Program, the Temporarily Absent Student Program and the Snowbird Program. We encourage voters who wish to learn more about these programs to contact the Absentee Voting Department at 360-5912," Helander said.

ELECTION: At large accused of being 'good ole boy' plan

have suggested. "I did not talk to Sen. Link or encourage him to file the bill," said Foreman.

"Some people have already assumed what my positions on issues would be," he added. "I'm in favor of the forest preserve referendum on the (April) ballot. I favor 'smart' growth and I'm against 'dumb' taxes."

Current board chairman Jim LaBelle (R-Zion) did not indicate if he would be a candidate for chairman if there were an at large election.

The county board, as a whole took, no official position on Link's proposal in its 1999 legislative package to Springfield. "The individual board members have our own opinions about it, but we want to maintain a good relationship with Sen. Link and we don't want this issue to interfere with other issues that are priorities to the county, such as additional money for sewers and roads."

However, he sees some potential pitfalls with electing the chairman at large.

"The issue really cuts two ways. In theory, it would seem like it would make sense to have county chairman elected countywide," LaBelle said.

"In practice, if that position were made countywide, it would radically affect the ability of candidates to consider running for the office because of the cost involved in running a countywide campaign for this type of office. You end up with the possibility of ending up with a chairman that is more indebted to interest groups that help fund that election."

LaBelle said the county board took no official position about an at large chairman in its legislative package to Springfield.

"If it passes, we'll live with it," he said. "The world isn't going to come to an end, but we may not like the change."

AT A GLANCE

A DIGEST OF STORIES MAKING HEADLINES THROUGHOUT OUR REGION

Library challengers form slate

Libertyville—Challengers for the Cook Memorial Library Board election are hoping for the power of one as they announced they will run as a unified slate.

Doug Hansmann, Cindy Killian, and Mike Kollman share common goals and will campaign as a slate for the upcoming April 13 election.

The three will challenge incumbents Cam Hock and Don Hook for seats on the board. With the removal of incumbent trustee Linda Lucke from the ballot, at least one of the three challengers is assured a spot on the board.

Candidates for the various elections may run as a slate but cannot be elected as a slate.

The common goals the three have stated are; alleviate current library overcrowding, develop specific and well-researched expansion opinions with a focus on a main library in downtown Libertyville, increase public input and involvement, improve service and access for all district residents, and ensure financial responsibility.

New YMCA in the works

Vernon Hills—Plans are in the works for a state-of-the-art YMCA facility to open in Vernon Hills in the year 2000.

The facility, to be called the Central Lake County YMCA, will be located on eight acres in an Continental Executive Parke near Routes 21 and 60.

The location was chosen as a central site to service more than 4,000 community members from Vernon Hills, Libertyville, Mundelein, Lake Forest, Lake Bluff, Lincolnshire, Mettawa, Green Oaks, Indian Creek, Long Grove and Buffalo Grove.

Fundraisers for the facility have set the campaign goal for funds at $6 million to finance the cutting edge facility.

Central Lake County YMCA will feature an indoor swimming pool, child care, personal training equipment and more than 35 programs.

First concert is spring first

Antioch—Lakes Area Community Band will host its first concert of the year on Sunday, March 21 at 3 p.m. at Antioch Community High School in the auditorium.

"It's a Spring Concert of popular music," said Steve Porch. Porch is the musical director of the community band, which is supported by Festival Arts of Antioch.

The concert will feature a variety of popular music and introduce a special flute ensemble of the band to the community.

"Complimentary tickets may be picked up at the State Bank of The Lakes and the Antioch Chamber of Commerce and Industry," Porch said.

Free tickets also will be available at the door.

Director Porch will be interviewed by Joan Hammell about the band's upcoming season on WKRS Radio (1440 kHz) on Thursday, March 18 from 11 to 11:30 a.m.

Candidates to host open house

Lindenhurst—The Community First Party forum to meet candidates is at the Serbian Brothers Hall Saturday, March 13 starting at 7 p.m.

The price of admission is a can of food for the Lake Villa Food Pantry.

"It looks like it is going to be a great turnout," said Paul Baumunk, incumbent Mayor of the village.

Candidates running together as the Community First Party are Baumunk, Marilyn Gregorin, Kenneth Czyzewicz, Kay Knapp, and Carl Norlin.

The uncontested village candidates will host the evening gathering to meet and talk to voters in a very informal setting.

"We're asking everyone to bring a non-perishable food item for the food pantry," Baumunk said.

Serbian Brothers Hall is one mile east of Sand Lake Road on Grand Avenue.

Village selects new police chief

Lake Villa—Village officials appointed Lt. Roger Visconti to the position of Chief of Police at their Wednesday, March 10 village board meeting.

Visconti had been named interim chief during the few weeks prior to his appointment.

"We all feel very comfortable with where we're at and what is being done," Mayor Frank M. Loffredo said of himself and village trustees.

During his almost two decades on the force, Visconti has served as patrolman, sergeant, and lieutenant. Many of his programs and improvements over the years remain as part of department operations.

Visconti has consistently been involved with police training and certification programs. In addition, he is a member of state, county, and national professional associations.

University Center sites reviewed

Mundelein—Between 50 and 60 village employees, citizens, educators, and business people gathered at the site on March 4 to show their support for the center.

This gathering was not organized as just a simple get-together, however. The Illinois State Board of Higher Education board members spent their day on March 4 visiting the three proposed sites for the center.

Mundelein was the first site to be visited, followed by the College of Lake County in Grayslake and Lakehurst Mall in Waukegan. The tours followed a series of presentations in Lincolnshire earlier that morning.

Located at 421 E. Hawley St., the site consists of 235,000 square feet on 11 acres, which at one time was an office complex. It is projected that the center would occupy some or all of buildings "a," "b," and "c." Building "a" consists of 65,087 square feet in a three-story building.

Village applies for park grant

Island Lake—The Village has big plans for its parks. Those plans call for big bucks, and the village does not want to put all the burden on its residents. That is why the village has applied for a park grant.

The village board has plans for an ambitious project to turn Veterans Park, on Route 176 across from Water Tower Park on the west side of town, into something special. The plans include a 3,500 bicycle path and park benches. The total project is budgeted at $173,500, of which the village has applied to the Illinois Department of Natural Resources for an $86,750 grant.

The village expects to know within six weeks if the grant has been approved, and will start the park's development as soon as possible thereafter, said Mayor Charles Amrich.

Cheerleaders want PE waiver

Wauconda—Cheerleaders and pom poms at Wauconda High School practice daily, and meet the state guidelines exempting them from physical education classes, yet they are not exempt.

The school board of Wauconda Unit District 118 wants to fix that omission by applying for a waiver from the Illinois State Board of Education. The board is expected to approve authorization of the waiver application at its March 18 board meeting, with the state expected to replay back in May.

WHS already exempts athletes during the season of their sport from PE, along with marching band members, any senior who is short a credit and needs to take another academic course to graduate, and anyone who has a physical condition, all according to state guidelines, said Dr. John F. Barbini, superintendent.

Board votes no on used cars

Fox Lake—The village is known as a resort town, a town starting to revitalize its downtown business district, and a town where cars and trucks made in the U.S.A. are sold.

The village board is protective of Fox Lake's interests, which was a reason given for denying at its March 8 meeting a special-use permit to open a used car sales lot at the northeast corner of Routes 12 and 134.

"The best use of that property is not a used car lot," said Trustee J. Kevin Hunter. "There is no long-term commitment from a used car dealer. Three of our biggest tax payers are three car dealers."

Students prepare for play

Ingleside—The Drama Club of Gavin South Junior High School next week is presenting its second play of the school year. The curtain will rise for "The Lions, the Witch and the Wardrobe" on Thursday, March 18, at 6:30 p.m., for a one-night only showing.

"This is Gavin South's first year of having a drama club, and our second play," said Krystal Schneider, who along with Ashley Pasiewicz, both 12-year-old sixth graders, is coordinating the posters, programs and promotion for the play. "The Trial of Goldilocks" was presented in November.

Parents, students and community members are invited to attend the play. No admission will be taken, however canned food donations will be accepted.

Heart attack blamed in fatal accident

Wadsworth—A fatal traffic accident involving a Kenosha, Wis. man on March 4 was determined to be the result of a heart attack.

David W. Hunter was traveling on Rt. 41, one mile south of Wadsworth Road, when he suffered a fatal heart attack and drove into a center median ditch. He was ejected from his vehicle after it rolled over four times. He had not been wearing a seatbelt.

Hunter, an employee of Union Nissan in Waukegan, was transporting a 1992 Mazda Miata from Stateline Auto Auction at 3:10 p.m. when the accident occurred. He was pronounced dead at St. Therese Hospital shortly after.

Candidates voice need for change

Gurnee—Several candidates for the upcoming Gurnee village board election expressed that the village board needs a new direction.

Don Rudny, plan commission chairman, said he has seen a change in the board's attitude over the past couple of years. He feels the board has alienated the citizens of Gurnee and would like to get the citizens more involved, which is a feeling shared by fellow candidates and plan commission members Kristina Kovarik and Ray Damijonaitis.

Kovarik said the Village of Gurnee needs trustees who will represent the citizens, not their own interests. Damijonaitis said recent decisions made by the village board have been detrimental to the community and that the board needs to take a new direction.

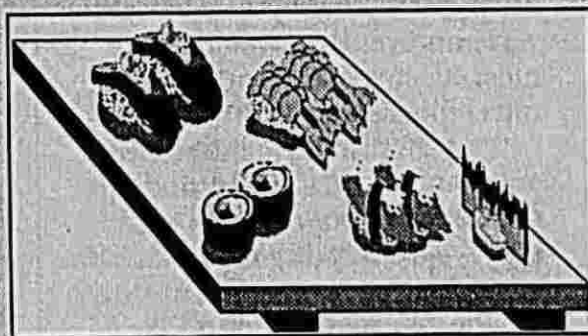

Lyle Foster expressed similar sentiments in that the village and citizens do not always have an agreed upon vision. James Sula wants to be sure the citizens' needs are met by the village.

Citizens exercise new means of speaking out at ballot box

There are two-citizen-driven initiatives on the April 13th ballot in Lake County.

Two opportunities for voters to speak out on issues where they feel their input was denied by the representatives they elected to serve them.

First, there is the citizens advisory referendum on the proposed Six Flags Entertainment Village placed on the ballot by members of the newly formed group C.U.R.V. (Citizens United for a Residential Village) of Gurnee. CURV is seeking more citizen input on the future of commercial growth in the village.

Angry with what they perceive as a lack of input at the village board and plan commission levels, this citizens group formed when the village board gave the nod to the concept plans and quickly educated themselves about the voting process.

They found out what it took to get an advisory referendum on the ballot and went out and got the signatures on the petitions to force the Village of Gurnee to listen to citizen input.

While the referendum will not be binding on the village board and its plans to pursue the development, it will give the board the opportunity to gauge where its citizenry stands on the issue.

Four of the six candidates running for Gurnee trustee seats will take part in a public forum on March 16, sponsored by C.U.R.V. The organization plans to interview all six of the candidates and announce endorsements for the village trustee race by month's end.

In Hawthorn Woods, citizens upset by the way their village government has handled discussions with mall developer Taubman, have forced an advisory referendum question on the matter asking citizens to vote on whether the village should approved the Super Regional Shopping Mall.

The advisory referendum was used successfully in 1993 when Antioch voters gave a thumbs down to a proposal to place a riverboat on the Chain O' Lakes.

While these advisory referendums are not binding on municipal governments, their power cannot be underestimated, because they represent the voice of the people.

There was a time when those unhappy with their elected officials just waited to vote them out of office when their term expired.

Today's electorate is not as patient.

Who says voters are apathetic?

They aren't when the decision affects their backyard.

The same could have been said about Americans two centuries ago.

Referendums can define communities

A referendum can be controversial. Some are passed with little opposition. Others attract fierce debate. The focus for many people seems to be directed at what they think of the proposal, the cost, and disagreements about need to spend public money, to raise taxes.

What does a referendum say about the people in a community and the mutual sense of responsibility which they feel for their shared actions?

The approach that Libertyville and Mundelein have taken toward the issue of a new library is very different from the approach that a community such as Antioch has taken. In Antioch, the library board decided to sponsor a referendum, developed an educational campaign, and informed voters. It passed. Library improvements are already appearing on the shelves.

The same was true in Antioch of other issues of public finance for a new fire station and police station. The village is now considering a school bond referendum to cope with student population growth of 50 percent in the next five years. The educational campaign began last November and proceeds every day.

People can come together and manage their mutual affairs in a way that serves notice that they are responsible. How people approach their mutual responsibilities is a measure of the whole community.

People evaluate and judge referendum proposals.

In Mundelein and Libertyville, proposal for library expansion and relocation have sparked fierce debate among its citizenry.

What happens during a referendum evaluates the community. It also shows how well citizens are informed and whether or not they feel the have been a part of the process.

The result becomes the community.

Good and bad.

VIEWPOINT

Newcomers ignore travel shortcomings

And still they keep coming. David E. Lutyens, director of the Lake County Transportation Improvement Project, continually is amazed at the disregard for transportation problems by newcomers streaming into the county at the rate of more than 8,000 per year—the equivalent of a new Antioch or Wauconda every 12 months.

"The last thing they think about is transportation," mused Lutyens, a 30-year-veteran of the Illinois Dept. of Transportation before becoming a private consultant. Lutyens heads up a study team with a budget of $7 million to make a recommendation on Lake County transportation needs. Experts are working with a 2020 time frame. Their forecast is a county with a population of 770,000 in two decades.

Prospective residents scrutinize school systems and health care. What's the nearest supermarket? How far to the mall? Realtors are quizzed endlessly about the rate of new home appreciation. Newcomers ask about real estate taxes. Some check out the available houses of worship and fitness centers. Are there any upscale restaurants? The last thing house hunters wonder about is highway travel conditions and public transportation.

A wag suggested that highway commute isn't part of the equation because most buyers shop homes and developments on Sunday.

While prospective home buyers may give a low priority to highway congestion, once they move in the newcomers quickly get on the same page as highway engineers—that roadway improvements are vital. Not so surprisingly, a preliminary finding of the survey is that "roadway improvements would be the most effective means of reducing travel congestion." Oh.

Lutyens dismissed this writer's criticism that preliminary findings of the study focus on north-south travel—a thinly disguised bias in favor of construction of the controversial Rte. 53 extension from Lake-Cook Rd. into central Lake County. He offered an interesting diagram showing that most Lake Countians want to travel north or south. Double oh.

BILL SCHROEDER
Publisher

Isn't getting to the north-south arterials the biggest headache of Lake County motorists? Lutyens answered by pointing out that east-west roads were factored into a finding that in 20 years, two-thirds of the major roadways will be congested and that 74 miles of additional lanes have been found to be necessary by then. What about today? The report is pretty sketchy on this point. Thirty miles have been earmarked for upgrading in "multi-year" programs, according to Lutyens. That means sometime in the future—when politicians are willing to cut loose the bucks.

An end result of the extensive and expensive study will include a "technical decision" on Rte. 53, the study director asserted. Lutyens cleared up a misapprehension on the part of Rte. 53 opponents that a federal environmental study ultimately will knock out the future tollway on the basis of air pollution and wetlands destruction. Not so. Federal input will be only part of the final recommendation, a single document in the overall findings of IDOT and the Tollway Authority.

Do you get the feeling that the deck might be stacked a wee bit in favor of building Rte. 53?

The crusty career highway engineer brought forth a chuckle from members of the Lakeland Newspaper editorial board meeting with highway study experts. "Lore and legend has it," Lutyens intoned, "that Gov. Dan Walker put the brakes on Rte. 53 in 1972."

Poor Dan. So he's the guy to blame for all this highway mess.

Good John

Good sport that he is, Congressman John Porter (R-10th) has gone along with all that Porter-Is-A-Jerk-For-Voting-To-Impeach-The-President stuff cooked up by some faithful Democrats, North Shore liberals and their handmaidens at the Chi Trib.

Always a gentleman, Porter dutifully poured over protest letters delivered to his Deerfield office by one Jane Goldenberg, purported organizer of a group calling itself Outraged Citizens. Goldenberg admitted that she's a Democrat who never voted for Porter. The shallowness of the "protest" was illustrated by the Chi Trib's reporterette who implied that Porter sails through primary elections, winning easily against "well-financed candidates with views representing the right wing of the Republican Party, perspectives that don't play well in the district...." Pheew!

Goldenberg is incensed that the courtly congressman is some kind of closet conservative masquerading as a moderate. Porter took all the outrage in stride, responding only that he believes he did what was right. We suspect a majority of voters in his district would agree.

Davis: Continues to pitch University Center in Round Lake Beach

Martin: Serving on Forest Preserve Referendum committee

Irwin: Not one of the boys

Let it go, Ralph

Round Lake Beach Mayor Ralph Davis doesn't seem to want to let go of the idea of a University Center in Round Lake Beach.

Even though two Round Lake Beach sites were among the first to be eliminated from consideration for a University Center, Davis has continued to extoll the virtue of one of the sites. He even made a pitch to the Illinois Board of Higher Education last week, which was reviewing the three finalists for the University Center. The finalists are the College of Lake County in Grayslake, Lakehurst Shopping Center in Waukegan and a downtown Mundelein site.

It is highly unlikely the state board would even consider the Round Lake Beach site at this point, which was not even among the University Center Task Force's top choices.

Perhaps Mayor Davis hasn't got the message yet, but it seems like everybody else has.

Supporting the cause

Although the weather outside was frightful, spirits were high for opening of the Friends of the Lake County Forest Preserve office in Libertyville last Saturday.

More than 50 people attended the campaign kickoff and opening of the office at 411 S. Milwaukee.

"It was great that so many people came out in that weather," said Linda Kellough, campaign manager for the Friends of Forest Preserve referendum campaign. "It was a real good spirit on the inside. The room was full."

The campaign is getting support from a wide range of individuals and groups, including some unlikely sources. Developers such as Jim Schneider of Century Homes and Richard Brown of Cambridge Homes attended the meeting to show their support.

Jack Martin is serving on the campaign committee and helping out with database management for the campaign, according to Kellough.

She believes the reason for the broad support is the campaign's positive message.

"It's not an anti-development campaign. It's a campaign that recognizes the need for balance," Kellough said.

Several environmental groups also attended the campaign kickoff.

The Friends of the Lake County Forest Preserve received a $3,400 check from the Lake County Conservation Alliance to support the referendum campaign.

"The Lake County Forest Preserve has done a marvelous job in preserving open space, providing wildlife habitat and flood control. We support their work completely and are enthusiastic about the referendum in April," said Susan Zingle, executive director for the Lake County Conservation Alliance.

One of a kind

Cindy Irwin is the only woman in the Fox Lake trustee race, facing three men for three positions.

"My campaign slogan is, 'I'm not one of the boys,'" she said.

No fan

Wadsworth Trustee Ron Sheptak is making no secret about who he supports in the upcoming presidential election—long-time Mayor Don Craft.

Sheptak has been openly critical of challenger Evelyn Hoselton and her approach.

"She sat through executive sessions and could have asked questions," Sheptak noted. "However, she decided to have the state attorney's office investigate, instead."

Sheptak is not a fan of her forthright way of doing business.

This may be a bitter race for Wadsworth voters. If Hoselton fails in her presidential bid, she will continue in her role as trustee for two more years.

It's Ladies Day in Arizona

Arizona voters in January elected women candidates to the state's top five offices: governor, secretary of state, treasurer, schools superintendent and attorney general.

The late, great Arizona senator, Barry Goldwater, would have approved. Long before the trend began he liked to say, "I'd rather see a woman elected. A woman is closer to life. Eighty-three percent of the money is spent by women. They understand they can't spend more money than the old man brings home."

It was early in the 1990s when the "Decade of the Woman" became undeniable here in Lakeland. Several villages opted for female mayors, including JoAnn Eckmann in Libertyville, Marilyn Sindles in Mundelein, Charlene Beyer in Round Lake Park, Joyce Frayer in Lake Villa, and Marilyn Shineflug in Antioch.

Shineflug and Sindles are still the mayors of their villages, Ila Bauer has succeeded Beyer in Round Lake Park, and Pat Carey is now the mayor of Grayslake.

Nationwide, since 1993, the number of women in the U.S. Senate has tripled. In California and Maine both senators are women, and women serve as governors in Arizona, New Jersey and New Hampshire.

The movement does seem to encourage any political aspirations of gals like Hillary Clinton and Elizabeth Dole.

Some people, like Goldwater perhaps, view women as being more perceptive and men as being more obtuse. That school of thought has been the premise for such popular TV sitcoms as "Cheers," "Home Improvement" and "Mad About You."

It was the famous Lady Astor who said, "I married beneath me. All women do."

Rent-A-Husband?

Spotted doing business in Lake County: a handyman in a van with the lettering, "Rent-A-Husband." And beneath that title the slogans,

THE PFARR CORNER

Jerry Pfarr

"For jobs around the house ... for jobs that don't get done."

The wording on the van has prompted other motorists to do a double take, honk their horns in approval and give the handyman "thumbs up."

Rent-A-Husband joins other clever business slogans we've been collecting. Such as:

"Spanky's Bar and Grill. Warm beer, lousy food and ugly bartenders."

A linen shop advertises "luxurious bath towels for the whole damp family."

A music store quips, "If you can't find a hairy piano, you can always get a Baldwin."

At the entrance to a nudist camp: "Come in where the peeling is mutual."

Sign in a veterinarian's waiting room: "The doctor is in. Sit. Stay."

A Nashville, Tenn., karate studio is called "Kickin' for Christ." It promises to teach "love and respect for your fellow man."

Wacky classifieds

Classified advertisers sometimes go for the funny bone, too. For example, this one from the Midland, Texas, newspaper:

"Lost: Golfing husband and dog. Last seen at local golf course. Reward for dog."

And others are humorous quite by accident:

"Dog for sale. Eats anything and is fond of children."

"Man wanted to work in dynamite factory. Must be willing to travel."

"Illiterate? Write today for help." "Girl wanted to assist magician in cutting-off-head illusion. Salary and Blue Cross."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Home builders should do own cost benefit analysis

At the Feb. 9 public hearing held by the Stormwater Management Commission to seek comments on the amended Lake County Watershed Development Ordinance (WDO), several representatives of the home building industry objected to many of the provisions designed to preserve and protect natural resources such as wetlands, woodlands, streams and rivers.

Their often repeated and tedious argument was that there was no proof of a need for the regulations since a proper cost/benefit analysis had not been executed. At first blush this request seems out of line. How can one put a dollar value on the loss of a wooded hilltop? What is the dollar value of a view that includes beautiful green trees full of wild life versus a shopping mall devoid on any architectural merit?

On second thought, however, there is some merit to a request for a cost/benefit analysis. In fact, it is such a sensible idea that I believe it should be adopted and expanded to other venues. How about a cost benefit analysis to show that a development will pay for itself when it puts more cars on already crowded roads and places students in schools that are overcrowded? How about a cost benefit analysis justifying the destruction of farmland that it took nature untold time to create?

How about a cost benefit analysis proving the county can afford to fund the massive amount of new services required in order to serve its ever-growing constituency. And how about a cost/benefit analysis to validate the time lost waiting for traffic lights or the value of a Lakehurst surrounded by acres of barren asphalt. And lastly, how about asking for a cost/benefit analysis detailing the effects of a development on municipal services such as sewer, water, police, fire and libraries.

Yes, I think the developers have a good idea. Let's ask them to expand this concept into all areas of their work. Only then will we be able to accurately analyze the long-term cost of too many strip malls, of houses designed to last for no more than 50 years and of mega-stores designed to be obsolete in 20 years.

Let's hear it for more cost/benefit analysis.

provements has been earmarked for Rte. 22, including widening at the Buesching Rd. intersection, new traffic signals and widening at Kelsey Rd. and new traffic lights, widening and other improvements at Old McHenry and Quinten Rds.

Bob knows

Bob ought to know. Grant Township Trustee Bob Selle, who is employed in sales by a national beer distributor, says Lake County Board Rep. Larry Leafblad (R-Grayslake) is off target voicing the opinion that taverns are as numerous as houses in some sectors of the Chain O'Lakes.

Leafblad, chairman of building and zoning, made the offhand comment in connection with proposed revisions in a regulating ordinance. "Might have been true 20 years ago, but not anymore," observed Selle. The town trustee said old fashioned shot-and-a-beer neighborhood gathering spots are disappearing. The new generation of beer drinkers hangs out in sports bars or buys preferred beverages in supermarkets or convenience stores.

Lots of talking

Harlan Dam, the always-on-the-go community relations maestro for ComEd and a skilled auctioneer on the side, had his tonsils working overtime last weekend. Saturday night he held forth at the $125,000 scholarship auction sponsored by Libertyville Rotary. Sunday morning Dam MC'd an auction benefit for Mundelein elementary schools.

Will we ever learn?

Will we ever learn? Housing development does not pay its way.

Study after study finds the need for new schools, sewer lines and other infrastructure created by urban sprawl costs taxpayers a minimum of $50,000 per house in the tax shortfall—still our Antioch Village Board approved (over the objection of their own planning committee) Deer Crest Planned Unit Development.

Otto Sprenger and his Deer Crest LLC cohorts will rake in the money at the expense of the Antioch real estate taxpayer in the amount of a minimum $25 million over the next 20 years.

All, in the name of progress. Profits, greed, and urban sprawl.

Why can't we learn from the experience of Schaumburg, Libertyville, Grayslake, and Gurnee?

The answer is we have only ourselves to blame, and we get the government we deserve.

Ode to Grayslake

I had always liked the quaint small town atmosphere of Grayslake ever since my old high school played here in sports, back in 1966. I was very happy to learn in 1990 that Grayslake still had the feeling of that small community and set out to relocate there. Then it happened—urban sprawl. The sprawl was no huge surprise for us—after all we were next in line after Libertyville and Mundelein, however for our city government it seemed they were taken completely by surprise. Giddy with the concept that people took an interest in them and in their small town, they handed out building permits with glee. "We will build a sea of home as far as the eyes can see." Well, the sea is here, in the form of taxes and traffic. Despite what the local government tell us, my property taxes have doubled in the last four years with new referendums being proposed monthly.

Grayslake

Represent whom?

Grayslake Trustee, Robert Russell, should not be re-elected on April 13. He ignored the pleas of his neighbors on two occasions and refused to walk over to the next block to talk to them about the unsafe, deep ditches created in front of some homes on Lawrence Ave. He is unresponsive and shunned his own neighborhood. Whom does he represent?

Grayslake

Check info

Regarding article on "Point system." Check your information before complaining. There is a "book of points" for points that are awarded to each person who volunteers. Coaches, team moms and people that work in the concession stands are given points. If you did any of these things, you would have known that these people are given points. Get your information straight before you complain. Do a little more helping and less complaining.

Fox Lake

Don't want sewers

Looks like they are back again, trying to pass sewers. I wonder if water management votes too? What do we have to do to let them know we don't want sewers? Those who are on fixed incomes or young people that have purchased their first homes, can't afford it. Let's get this thing cleaned and stop this. They claim there are 54 percent for it, and 45 percent against. I wonder if they forgot to put in the names of the snowbirds, of those that are for or against the sewers?

Antioch

Help-Stop criticizing

I am an ex-member of the Grant Township Little League. This point system was started originally because we could not get enough crew to volunteer their time to come out and help us. That's why we went to a point system to encourage more people to come out and help. I was there when Larry Lutz was an 18 year old, who volunteered his time. In all these years, he has been working very hard. For this person to insinuate that he is making money off of this deal, is wrong. I know he pays for his children every year, just like everyone else did. If this person would take the time to come to the board meetings, they would realize how much work there is to do, month after month. They wouldn't be so critical of those people that are doing all the work.

Ingleside

Need new deans

The Round Lake School board really needs to get some new enrollment of deans. Students don't feel they can talk about problems to the dean. There has been an increase in student drop out at the Round Lake High School

Round Lake

Think

I hope everyone's happy that 57 percent voted for a tax increase. Woodland School, use the money wisely. Now that you have increased our taxes, most of the people will be paying more in taxes than they are paying for their house. It is utterly ridiculous. How many times are our taxes going to be raised? Stop giving out building permits. That will decrease the enrollment of children in the schools. Think.

Grayslake

No referendum

I am a taxpayer in Fox Lake and have read about the Fox Lake Elementary School referendum for $12.3 million that was voted down last year. The reason for having it voted down was, it just didn't look logical and it looked like something under-handed was happening. It seems like something under-handed is happening again. This committee is telephoning district parents who are not registered voters, but not calling anyone else. They should call everyone to inform the public, so that everyone can make up their minds on this referendum. I am totally against it. I think the $12.3 million will grow to $25 million before it finishes. Our taxes are too high as it is. Also, it was stated that District 118 school board is promoting a referendum without campaigning, which is not allowed. Why can a committee do this campaigning and not the school board? I am very disgusted with the whole thing. I don't think the Lotus and Forest School should be done away with.

Fox Lake

Pay for own roads

I read the article on Ranier Woods, Fox Lake—the high density development in Fox Lake wanting Fox Lake to take over their private road. We have enough taxes in Fox Lake. We do not need any more taxes to take care of a private road. They have assessments to pay. Those assessments should pay for their private road. Fox Lake should not. I don't want the taxes to go up for a private road.

Democratic retaliation

About the question "Will you retaliate against the Republicans in the next election. No, I think the opposite. I am going to retaliate against Democrats for allowing the president to be above the law. He committed perjury, he lied to the grand jury, he was not held accountable. He is not above the law. They voted for the presidency, rather than the constitution of the United States. They are completely wrong. I doubt if I will ever vote for a Democrat again.

Think again

If citizens of Lake County think the only problem brewing at CLC are a stacked deck for university center or hidden cameras scattered throughout the college, they should think again. Close to 20 percent of the administrative staff have left for new employment recently? Perhaps those within the college have known sometime about leadership problems that taxpayers are just now finding out about.

Everybody 'dance'

In regard to Dr. Dam adding on to Lilac Apts. I would rather see him build a grocery store in Fox Lake or Ingleside, for the convenience of the seniors to have a place to shop. I do not approve of the schools holding dances that are called "turnabout" that the girls have to ask the boys. These are 5th graders. They are very shy. This is encouraging dating at a very young age. It should be a dance that all the kids can go to have fun and not feel intimidated to go, because they are afraid to ask someone, or afraid of rejection.

'Signs of spring'

Spring is upon us once again. Telltale signs are there. The flowers are coming up, the endless rain has started. Eagle Point Road raceway is once again open. Perhaps you should know that "eggs are for eating, not throwing; mailboxes are for mail, not destruction." "Speed limit" and "Slow Children Playing" signs are not for decorations, they are there for a reason. If you are looking for some spring action, the village could always use some volunteers.

Behavior unacceptable

Will the person who removed the wheels and lids from the garbage cans on Pinegrove Avenue on March 1, then placed the cans at my next door neighbors house, please return the missing items or replace with new garbage cans. I am a 50-year resident and have never had a problem like this. This behavior is not acceptable.

Round Lake Beach

'No' to sewers

Regarding the article titled "Sewers wanted." Unless someone has a twist of logic here, they say only 54 percent of the people who the surveys were sent to (was not the whole population of Antioch), responded to surveys. Out of that 54 percent, 55 percent wanted sewers, 45 percent said "no" they didn't want sewers. This is a typical bureaucratic smudge. All of the towns have known for the last year that they are going to run these sewers through, whether the public wants them or not. The people that I have talked to, say "no" they have adequate septic systems, they have adequate water supplies, they do not want to continue to pay for these things.

Need fresh minds

Time to weed the gardens. Let's keep Grayslake a fine community by occasionally plucking the weeds from our garden. We have a good opportunity now for renewal for the village board for three trustees spots open. Don't forget to vote on April 13. We need some fresh minds combined with some fresh hometown spirit.

Grayslake

Miracle plan

All of a sudden, this miracle plan of holding Phase 2 of the Fox Lake school board district came out of nowhere. Maybe it's because the taxpayers are complaining. Keep up the good work taxpayers, keep complaining. We'll stop this referendum, yet.

Fox Lake

'Told you so'

All the pay that the 18 year old trustee got as a trustee in Fox Lake is going to go to lawyers fees and fines since he was charged for his driving "disability" and acting rudely to the policeman.

Fox Lake

Return jacket

My son is an Antioch Upper Grade School student and has attended an away volleyball game. His jacket was pilfered, by someone during the game. This is a brand new Ralph Lauren ski jacket with a logo imprinted. My son and I are extremely upset and I am hoping that some parent will appreciate the fact that this item does not belong to their child and will contact the Antioch Upper Grade School to let us know where we may pick up the jacket, no questions asked. Also, in talking to other parents, I have heard that this has happened during other games, that other items have been taken from the schools during games. As a parent I advise you, not to send any expensive valuables to the school if your child is attending an away game.

Antioch

No tax raises

I am reminding all the Round Lake voters- Do not vote for referendum to raise your taxes.

Round Lake Park

Important election

Regarding the upcoming referendum for District 116 School District. Voters, I urge everyone to get out and vote on April 13. It is a very important election for us. There is a one-time capital construction grant that is offering a 49 percent match of funds if we pass the referendum. This is a one-time opportunity for us. We all do agree we have had it with the high taxes here. We also have to agree that our children do need it. Our area is growing and our schools are overcrowding fast. For a house valued at approximately $100,000, taxes will increase about $39. That is such a small amount when you think about it. All of our surrounding areas have passed the same referendum. So let's be smart and do the same for our children in Round Lake. They deserve it also. Any information regarding the referendum, you can contact the Round Lake district office or contact the area schools for the times of referendum meetings

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

After Y2K: Business Trends in the New Millennium

If you believe the gloom-and-doomers, the world may end on January 1, 2000. However, there are a few of us who believe that businesses may actually survive without their faithful and trusty computers for a few hours. What then? What will the 21st century bring to American business owners after Y2K?

Let me jump start your thinking process with a few questions. Do you believe we'll see the demise of the small-business owner due to continued industry consolidation, merger mania and competitive attrition? Will all business move to electronic commerce? Who will be working? What will the next customer service fad be, and who will write the best book about it?

While I can't predict the future, I can tell you this: The coming 100 years will be the most interesting in your lifetime. Here are my thoughts on the future.

Pretty good bets

* We will survive the Y2K problem. Not without some glitches, but we will survive. My guess is that a few computer hardware and software companies will cash in their chips and leave the game. Others will spring up where the casualties left off.

* Entrepreneurs will set the pace. Big companies will start acting small in order to survive. "Business Week" reported in January that major corporations had reduced their workforces by 678,000 jobs in 1998. Yet the December 1998 unemployment rate hit a 28-year low at 4.3 percent. Who kept the unemployment numbers low? Entrepreneurs. Yes, small-businesses picked up the slack.

* Electronic commerce will flourish. The use of the Internet and the World Wide Web will continue to increase at significant rates. There are several reasons why. First, the information technology infrastructure is nearly in place. By some estimates, U.S. companies have poured nearly $2 trillion into information technology. Second, access, hardware, and software are becoming more affordable to U.S. consumers. Third, the biggest markets in U.S. history—the baby boomers and Generation X'ers—are driving on-line usage. Fourth, all businesses are the same size on-line. To me, these indicators point to increased Internet use, and more on-line commerce.

* Dollar bills will still be valid as spending money. A few years ago, electronic "smart-cards" were hyped as the "future of money." The only problem with the smart-card approach was that the futurists didn't factor in the resistance of two sets of players: consumers and merchants. In addition to cash, credit cards will remain strong as a method for consumer payment. Checks will hang around a few more years, despite the nearly billion dollar loss bad check writers inflict on U.S. businesses each year.

* Service will continue to deteriorate. Don't look for miracles in this area. Most customers will expect less service and get it. A few will demand better service and pay for it. The business community will continue to promote customer service as a competitive advantage strategy. Speakers will continue to speak, writers will continue to write and business owners will take pride in their "above average" service programs. Customers will grow

Free Y2K kit available for small business

The Chicago Manufacturing Center is offering a free Y2K assessment toolkit to assist small businesses in determining year 2000 readiness.

The kit is available by download from the newly redesigned CMC web site at www.cmcusa.org, the toolkit contains software developed by the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST) to help small companies identify their potential Y2K problems and create an action plan for correcting them.

The software leads business owners and managers through an extensive inventory of their affected hardware, software and interfaces. Using the gathered information, the toolkit analyzes potential Y2K problems and prioritizes the issues to be dealt with, addressing high-risk items first.

"It's critical that plant managers and owners understand the issues of the Y2K compliance problem," said Bill Fanslow, director of CMC's information technology group.

"Failure to develop a contingency plan that addresses issues such as embedded chips in the manufacturing equipment could result in a loss of sales, a loss of customers or even bankruptcy."

A private, not-for-profit consulting firm, CMC serves the six-county Chicago area, with a focus on manufacturing companies with fewer than 500 employees.

CMC uses experts from the private and public sector to help companies succeed in such areas as: marketing, sales, and distribution; customer service; international business development; quality; materials management environmental engineering; source and waste reduction; productivity; workforce development; and systems and operations.

CMC is a part of the manufacturing Extension Partnership (MEP), a program of the U.S. Department of Commerce's National Institute of Standards and technology.

For more information regarding CMC's free Y2K toolkit, please contact Bill Fanslow, director of CMC's information group at (773) 265-2020.

Antioch Chamber sets Expo/Trade show

Annual show set for March 27, 28

Top prize for two lucky people who attend the Antioch Expo/Trade Show is $1,000 towards the travel destination of their choice, anywhere in the world.

The Antioch Chamber of Commerce and Industry will host its Third Annual Antioch Business Expo/Trade Show on Saturday and Sunday, March 27 and 28 at Antioch Community High School in the gymnasium.

The show will feature exhibitors, demonstrations, give-a-ways, and entertainment for the entire family. For the first time, visitors will be able to purchase merchandise from exhibitors at the show.

"It's going great," said Susie Kolle, marketing representative of the chamber. She said there will be a full range of exhibitors.

Kolle said the exposition and trade show is a good opportunity for people to learn what Antioch has to offer shoppers. "Shoppers are going to be exposed to businesses they may not be familiar with in Antioch and maybe find a new, close-by product and service that they can use," Kolle said. "They can create a personal relationship with the people who own their businesses here in Antioch."

"Exhibitors have the opportunity to sell merchandise," Kolle said. "They can sell anything related directly to their primary business."

To enter the travel package drawing, people who attend the expo/trade show must visit each merchant.

TAYLOR: Business trends in the new century, prepare now more sullen as service declines. Who will write the new "service fad" book? Probably a "retired" NBA basketball coach whose team didn't make the playoffs or an American Airlines pilot home on sick leave. Both are focused on taking care of customers.

* Everyone will be working. A recent study by the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) reported that 80 percent of the baby boomers surveyed planned to work after they retire. One in six plan to start a business after retirement. They may put in fewer hours and have lighter workloads, but still they will be working. And so will you and I.

'Gardens of Holland' at Chicago Flower and Garden Show

Leider Horticultural Companies, Inc. of Buffalo Grove is celebrating its 100th anniversary in 1999 with a trip to the Chicago Flower and Garden Show, Hocus Crocus. Spring Magic Blooms, which runs March 13 to 21. In a fantastic debut, Leider is presenting a "Dutch Spring Garden," a replica of Holland's famous Keukenhoff Gardens.

The "Dutch Spring Garden" brings a unique display of tulips, daffodils, and hyacinth to Chicago in a beautiful woods-like setting complete with flowering shrubs and trees. Using hundreds of colorful bulbs, a quiet stream and cobblestone pathway, this replica of Holland's famous landscape is a peaceful escape from the cold Chicago winter.

"We are really excited about our first year at the Chicago Flower and Garden Show, and we've been hard at work planning our own version of the Keukenhoff Gardens," says co-owner Mike Leider. "This opportunity is even more exciting for us as we are celebrating our centennial by opening our first retail garden center, Leider Prairie View Gardens, in Buffalo Grove. Those two big events are making 1999 a huge year for us."

Leider Prairie Vie Gardens opens on April 16 at Leider's Buffalo

Grove location, 855 Aptakisic Road.

Gardening with fewer pesticides

You love your garden, but hate the pests and problems that attack it. How can you cut down on pesticide use and still have a beautiful garden? University of Illinois Extension is offering a program to show you how to do this. The program, "Reducing Pesticide Use in the Landscape," examines a variety of methods for reducing pesticide use. Basic horticultural practices, as well as mechanical and biological controls will be discussed.

The program is scheduled for Saturday, April 24 from 10 a.m. to noon at the Extension office in Grayslake (100 S. Highway 45, Grayslake). There is no fee, but pre-registration is required. To register, call the Extension office at 223-8627.

How To Survive
The Job Search

By Nancy Sakol

Q: I have been employed with a company for the past 4 months as a secretary. While I have enjoyed my job and the people that I work with, there have been recent changes in my life that have put additional pressure on me. I was called in to the boss's office a few weeks back and was told that my attitude seemed to have been slipping and that I appeared to be short-tempered with customers and co-workers. I apologized for the abnormal attitude and explained about the changes in my life that were creating a bit of a hardship and therefore most likely being the reason for this. The boss was nice enough to ask if there was something that the company could do to help. While I declined, I apologized and said that I would make every effort to see that my personal problems remain outside the office. A few days went by when I received a call at work from my family out of state. They asked if I would move out there and start a new life, and that they would offer me support. I thought it over and agreed to wait until the end of April to make the move out east and that I would stay on for as long as they needed to find a replacement and for me to train that person. Yesterday, one week after I gave him the letter I was called in and told that it would be my last day, that the company decided to move someone from within the company that would require little to no training. Here I am 6 weeks prior to the time that I was planning to leave, with no job. I went and filed for unemployment this morning thinking that I would be able to collect, only to find out that I am ineligible for unemployment benefits due to the fact that I resigned my job. What am I supposed to do now? D.S. Mundelein

A: I wish I had the answer for you. My guess is that you should contact your family and make arrangements to make your move out east in the near future. Why put it off? Just because you have personal problems is no reason for the department of unemployment to issue you a paycheck. You turned in a written letter of resignation stating your intentions were to move out of state. You offered to stay as long as they needed you...not, as long as you needed them. Sometimes things do not work out exactly as we plan. If you are planning on going, go. If there is no reason to stay, why put off till tomorrow when there could be a great job around the corner today? Good luck to you.

Q: How long do you have to work for a company until you get insurance benefits? I have some medical problems that I need to deal with and need to know when I am covered.

G.E. - Grayslake

A: Well, that all depends on the company you are working for. This is a question that should have been addressed during the interviewing process and prior to accepting the position. At this point we are just assuming that your employer has insurance benefits. Without knowing who you are employed with, or how long you have been working there, I cannot give you the answer. The possibility exists that if you are in a small company, they may not have mentioned benefits because they do not have benefits. I would make it a point to go to the person that handles the personnel functions of the company, or the person who hired you direct and ask as soon as possible. If you are in a large corporation, the thought of them not having covered this with you pre-hire would be dumb-founding.

MARCELLUS (338-040)

Marcellus (338-040) emphasizes outside spaces with many patio and deck areas, while providing a spacious interior brightened with bay windows. The main floor and daylight basement are 2,606 square feet. The covered front porch is dressed up with brick planters and two sets of steps.

The interior entry is flanked by double doors to the master suite and a half wall separating off the living room. The master suite is bathed in light from large windows throughout. The bath area has an oversized shower and separated toilet area. The walk-in closet is beyond the bathroom area.

Off the master suite is a half bath next to the entry closet. The living room has a row of long, narrow windows that provides a brightness to the room. The three-sided fireplace is located in the center of the room with the stairs to the basement and the optional elevator in the rear.

An informal eating area occupies the right rear corner of the home, giving the kitchen a very open quality. Windows and French doors bathe this area in sunlight, while giving easy access to outdoor dining. The kitchen has an island cooktop and double ovens. A pocket door separates the utility room from the kitchen. Main access to the pantry is in the utility room. However, access is also available in the kitchen through built-in cabinet doors.

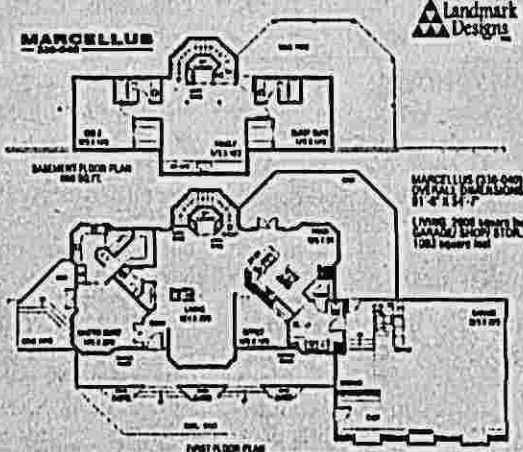

A fully equipped utility room containing the pantry, an oversized sink, and a hideaway ironing center also opens into the garage. Counter and storage cabinets on each side of the washer and dryer provide areas to fold clothes and for storage.

At the end of the concrete walk there is a service door leading into the oversize garage where there is storage space, a mechanic's shop, and an attic.

Stairs to the basement and an elevator occupy the rear bay window area. The family room has an entire wall face framed for an entertainment center. On each side of the stairs are bedrooms with walk-in closets. The guest suite has its own private bath, while the bath is on the exterior of the second bedroom. A door from the family room opens onto a large patio.

The openness of the Marcellus, the elevator to the basement, and easy access to rooms through the double doors would make this home ideal for wheelchair use.
